President Roosevelt Considers Business Council

PRESIDENT WEIGHS CREATING AGENCY TO HELP RECOVERY

O. MAX GARDNER ALSO MENTIONED

Coca-Cola Company Head and President of Sears' Recognized as Builders.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) President Roosevelt is considering the creation of a new "inner council" of businessmen to study and make recommendations on economic problems, some of the more conservative advisers of the chief executive said today.

Whether he actually would decide to set up such a council was not known, but it was said "great pressure" was being exerted "both from within and outside the administration" in behalf of the idea.

"Right wing" elements among the President's friends were arguing that such a step would tend to bring businessmen and the administration closer together for a common attack on depression problems.

Those reported to be under consideration for the proposed "council" include: Brigadier General Robert E. Wood, Chicago, president of Sears, Roebuck & Company; Frank C. Walker, millionaire New York attorney, who was formerly a director of the National Emergency Council, and Robert W. Woodruff, of Atlanta, president of the Coca-Cola Company.

Gardner Also Mentioned.

The name of O. Max Gardner, former Governor of North Carolina, also was mentioned. Although primarily a lawyer, he is in touch with business problems as general counsel for the Cotton Textile Institute.

Three of the four men mentioned have been strangers to Washington in recent years. General Wood, an army man from his graduation at West Point in 1900 through the World War, was called here early in 1935 to help supervise the spending of $4,000,000 as chairman of the work relief advisory committee. At the time he resigned the job after a brief period of service, reports were current among businessmen that he was not pleased with the handling of work relief.

Emergency Council Head.

Walker, a reticent figure who consistently kept out of the spotlight, was twice head of the National Emergency Council, a depression-born agency. When he resigned in 1935 he became acting head of a theater chain operating in Pennsylvania and New York state.

Gardner recently was mentioned

House Group Favors Air Bill Howell Commission Urged

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, April 28.—Following closely broad recommendations made by the Federal Aviation Commission, of which the late Clark Howell Sr., editor and president of The Atlanta Constitution, was chairman, the House Interstate Commerce Committee today reported favorably a bill to create a civil aeronautics authority and provide for the regulation of all civil aviation.

As recommended by the Howell commission, the bill would create a civil aeronautics authority, or commission of three members and an administrator, all to be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the senate, at an annual salary of $10,000 each.

While all amendments to the original draft of the measure were not perfected at a late hour today, its general terms are now definitely known.

Take Over Administration.

The new commission, which would take over all civil aviation

Points of Bill On Air Rules

Main points of the bill reported favorably yesterday by the House interstate commerce committee to create a civil aeronautics authority to regulate all civil aviation:

Creation of a commission of three members and administrator, to be appointed by the President with approval of the senate, at an annual salary of $10,000 each.

The commission, through the administrator, would make a field survey of the existing system of airports, and report to congress no later than February 1, 1939, whether the federal government should participate in the development or maintenance of a national system of airports.

All executive functions of the authority would be subject to general direction of the President.

The commission would have a chairman, vice chairman and one other member, to be appointed for terms of two, four and six years on the commission's organization.

RAIL ASSOCIATION URGES WAGE CUT

Pay Roll Reduction of $260,000,000 Annually Is Asked by Directors.

CHICAGO, April 28.—(UP)—Directors of the Association of American Railroads, representing 142 Class 1 carriers, today drafted a recommendation for reducing the wages of 1,000,000 railway workers as a partial solution to the industry's critical financial problems.

John J. Pelley, president of the board which met to draft a program for submission to the association's full membership tomorrow, said the board also discussed asking the Interstate Commerce Commission for new emergency freight rate increases but "did nothing that would be newsworthy." He said "two or three" other recommendations were discussed.

Pelley would not say specifically what wage reduction was recommended but as the directors met there was discussion of the need for cutting pay rolls $260,000,000 annually.

For six and one-half hours the directors of the association met in executive session before Pelley emerged to announce:

"We have drafted a definite recommendation, a resolution, regarding the wage question."

"Does it propose a wage reduction?" he was asked. "I think you may say that it does," he replied. The call for today's meeting recommended a 15 per cent wage cut.

Girl Bares Parental Permission To Be 'Daughter' to Physician, 76

Former Salesgirl Selected From Among 33 Applicants.

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 28.—(AP)—Miss Raye Paige, 24-year-old former five and ten cent store clerk and governess, said today she had parental permission to enter the home of Dr. C. S. Bolender, 76-year-old retired physician, here, as his daughter.

She explained Dr. Bolender would not attempt to adopt her legally. Aside from that, she had little to say about the case. She was selected from among 33 applicants who answered the retired physician's newspaper advertisement for a daughter.

BISHOPS DISAGREE ON UNIFICATION AS MEETING OPENS

COLLEGE OF BISHOPS HAILS CONFERENCE

Cannon Denies That Address Is 'Tantamount to Recommendation'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 28.—(AP)—The battle over reunion of Northern and Southern Methodists, split in 1844 by slavery, opened today with a disagreement among the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, meeting here to consider merger with other groups in the denomination.

The Episcopal address, read at the opening of the 23d quadrennial conference of Southern Methodism, by Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs, was followed by a dissenting statement, offered by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, and also signed by Bishop Warren A. Candler, Atlanta.

Cannon Takes Issue.

Bishop James Cannon arose to take issue with the statement of the two dissenting bishops that the Episcopal address was "tantamount to recommendation" of the plan of union, and drew cheers when he added that the College of Bishops did not consider the Episcopal address "the place for an argument on unification."

Both proponents and opponents of unification supported a motion by Dr. T. D. Ellis, floor leader for the reunion advocates, to make the "plan of union" a continuing order of business until final disposal.

Thus, reunion took the spotlight almost from the opening minutes of the general conference, hailed by the College of Bishops as the most important since southern Methodists broke away from northern Methodists and formed their own church.

Two Churches Approve.

Both the Methodist Episcopal (northern) and Methodist Protestant Churches have approved the plan of union, which would bring approximately 8,000,000 persons into a single church. Negroes would be segregated in a "central jurisdiction," with the white members divided into five other jurisdictions on a geographical basis.

"We Recommend..."

The chapter on unification recited the long history of the movement, and concluded with this sentence:

"We recommend the report of the commission (unification) to the general conference for thorough consideration and such action as is befitting the most important matter which has come before the general conference since the organization of our church in 1845."

It was this sentence which Bishops Denny and Candler interpreted as "a recommendation that"

Wage-Hour Opponents Seek To Shelve Bill

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) The wage-hour bill, much desired by the Roosevelt administration, is expected to encounter a crucial test tomorrow, when opponents will seek to have the house rules committee pigeonhole it.

If the committee decides to give the bill "preferential status" the measure would go to the house floor almost at once. If it should decide adversely, many believe the bill would receive no further consideration at this session of congress.

Momentous Address

FRANCE, BRITAIN POOL WAR POWER

Agree on Action in Case of Conflict But Defer Decision on Czech Issue.

LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—France and Great Britain, brought together by fear of the German war machine, reached full agreement today on pooling their military might in the event of a European explosion.

The interdependence of the two countries rapidly neared expression in a formal, mutual assistance pact. Both were taking swift steps to put defenses in order and combining their resources in wartime.

French Premier Edouard Daladier, at the conclusion of the first of two days of conference among British and French premiers and foreign ministers, declared:

"We arrived without difficulty at complete agreement. Without exaggeration, all conversations were most cordial, everyone being fully aware of and fully understanding the necessities we have to face."

"On all important points an accord has been reached and on certain problems of vital interest never before obtained."

The ministers put off until tomorrow the most dangerous immediate question—the problem of Czechoslovakia, where a Nazi German minority has increased its clamor.

Agreement on these points emerged from the meeting headed by Daladier and British Prime Minister Chamberlain:

1. The British-Italian friendship pact—despite French fears of Italian and German domination in Spain through the support the Fascist countries have given Spanish insurgents.
2. Continuance of the "hands-off Spain" policy as the best insurance against embroiling the rest of Europe in war.
3. Mutual defense preparations, both military and economic, with technical staff talks probable soon.
4. The procedure to take at Geneva to gain recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia—which Italy has demanded as a price of renewed friendship with the two countries.

New National Political Party Is Launched by La Follette

Progressives of America Dedicated to 'Right of Free People to Work.'

MADISON, Wis., April 28.—(AP) Governor Philip F. La Follette, of Wisconsin, announced to the nation tonight formation of a new political party—the National Progressives of America—dedicated to a philosophy of preserving the "right of a free people to work, and by their work to add to the wealth of the country."

To 5,000 wildly cheering followers in the University of Wisconsin stock pavilion he announced the "decision"—reached after consultation with rank and file groups over the country.

2,000 Outside.

About 2,000 persons who could not gain admittance to the assembly hall heard La Follette over a loud speaker system and he addressed them briefly afterwards.

The Governor failed to disclose his personal plans—whether he will run for a fourth term or retire to lead the battle for organization of the new party, of which he now is the chief officer.

Building of the party into an effective organization will start at Des Moines, Iowa, tomorrow. The Governor is scheduled for a radio broadcast there and will address a farm labor group at Cedar Rapids Saturday.

The decision to create a new party, which he said had been joined by Liberals the country over, was announced in these dramatic words:

"A beginning has been made, here and now, not in 1944, not in 1940, but now, in 1938."

"The National Progressives of America are now organized. State by state we shall build as rapidly as firm foundations can be laid. Definitely and irrevocably we are in the lists to stay until the American people recapture their heritage.

"Make no mistake, this is not a third party. As certain as the sun rises, we are launching the party of our time."

"We are now at a crossroad. We cannot turn to capitalism or to Socialism, we cannot turn to Fascism or to Communism. We are near the end of the road. The time has come when a new trail must be blazed—a trail that will take the fundamental teachings of the past and apply them to the modern world as we know it."

"During the six years of the Roosevelt administration we transferred red ink from the books of private enterprise to the bookkeeping of our local, state and national government. This well

Natal Deaths Must Be Cut, Says Doctor

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 28.—(AP) Bewhiskered Dr. S. S. Smith, of Athens, spoke a word for the midwife today when he told the Medical Association of Georgia:

"A too active and fidgety doctor can cause more harm than half a dozen so-sisters."

Discussing maternal mortality and infant deaths, Dr. Smith directed a challenge at physicians with the statement "We can reduce maternal mortality by 50 per cent in 12 months."

As one possible approach, he suggested equipping "every justice of peace in every militia district with a woman's organization" to insure the pre-natal care which Dr. Smith said was the most important in connection with child birth.

"Home is safer than most hospitals," he said.

Dr. Smith chided too-earnest doctors, saying "as soon as he reaches the patient he begins to look for something to do, forgetting that 95 to 98 per cent of mothers will have their babies satisfactorily if left alone."

Child, Abandoned to Truck Driver, To Be Sent to Foster-Grandmother

Eight-Weeks-Old Boy Left in His Car by Rita Lowell, Says Tuttle

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28. Rita Lowell, 19, whose eight-week-old son was found in a truck and who had been missing since Tuesday, was found here tonight.

The girl's foster mother, Mrs. Rose Szentner, of New York, feared foul play after the young mother left the baby in care of Walter Tuttle, truck driver. Tuttle signed a statement that the girl boarded his truck at Norfolk, rode with him three days, then got out of the vehicle and left the baby with him.

Meanwhile, County Welfare Superintendent A. W. Cline, at Winston-Salem said the child would be returned to Mrs. Szentner.

3 Due Tomorrow; New Grand Jury To Organize, Be Sworn Monday.

In the first indictments returned against law enforcement officers since the grand jury inquiry into police graft began last fall, a city policeman and two former deputy sheriffs were charged with accepting bribes from persons "engaged in illegal sale of liquor."

The indictments charged City Policeman R. R. Davis with two counts of bribery, former Deputy Sheriff G. H. Howard Jr. with five counts of bribery, and former Deputy Sheriff J. F. Schilling Sr. with four counts of bribery.

Davis was charged with accepting $25 from A. T. Jeans, better known as Pee Wee Burns, on October 1, 1937, and on June 10, 1937, with accepting $15 from Charlie Leahy.

Howard was charged with accepting $50 from David Townsend, as payoff man for Pee Wee Burns, on August 1, 1937. Count two of the indictment charged he accepted a $30 payment from Walt Scogins on May 15, 1937, while the third count charged he accepted $55 from Joe Sturman on June 26, 1937.

$1,000 Bribe Charged.

In count four, Howard was charged with accepting a $1,000 bribe from Lynn Edgar not to arrest him for violating the state prohibition law and not to confiscate his whiskey.

Howard was charged with accepting a $300 bribe from Sam Dardarian, restaurant owner, on October 6, 1936. The last count charged Howard, jointly with Schilling, accepted the money "to refrain from testifying to the full truth" in a Fulton criminal court trial of Dardarian for possession of whiskey.

In the indictment against Howard, he was accused of acting jointly with Schilling in each count except count four, in which Howard was accused of accepting the $1,000 bribe.

The four-count indictment against Schilling charged him with accepting, jointly with Howard, $25 from Townsend, as Burns' payoff man; $30 from Walt Scogins, $65 from Joe Sturman and $300 from Dardarian.

Each count charged Davis, Howard and Schilling with accepting

THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES

Sally Saver

Questions about recipes or menus will be answered if you will write or phone the editor of this column at Walnut 6565.

Picnics and traveling just seem to go together, even though you can have the finest picnics in your own backyard, and have an exciting and interesting tour reading travel books and pamphlets. In fact, Sally is giving you today in this column a grand back-yard fishing party plan which will delight your menfolks and a world tour via the egg route with many unusual and delicious foreign egg recipes.

Ideas for picnic lunches are divided into two classes. In the first, the meal is prepared in advance, ready to serve when unpacked. This is the type of lunch that is favored by the majority of housewives who like to have a real rest from cooking on picnic days. In the second, the cooked picnic meal is not difficult to plan, since it revolves around some meat, such as steak, chops, bacon or broiled frankfurters, accompanied by camp fried eggs, potato salad or a similar dish.

Picnic Recipe Contest

Here are the winning recipes for this week:

Chicken a la Maryland.

One 3-to-4-pound chicken, 1 egg, salt to taste, 2 tablespoons butter or substitute; 2 cups bread crumbs, garnish with parsley or water cress.

Clean and cut chicken in serving pieces, beat egg to which salt has been added; add chicken and cover it with egg mixture and roll in the bread crumbs. Place in buttered baking dish and dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven about 45 minutes or until a lovely golden brown.

MRS. HERMAN L. TURNER, 30 Terrace drive, N. E. Atlanta, Ga.

Pineapple Ribbon Sandwich.

One can corned beef, 1 can pineapple, 1 bottle stuffed olives, 1 sandwich loaf, chill corned beef, remove from can, cut in thin slices. Drain pineapple. Build up sandwich, as follows: Spread slice of bread with mayonnaise, add slice of beef, sliced olives, bread, pineapple. Alternate slices of bread until at least 4 slices of bread have been used. Then press firmly and cut down and you will have a delicious picnic sandwich. MISS MYRTICE COTTON, Moreland, Ga.

Fruit Tarts.

Line muffin tins with your favorite pastry, fill with following mixture and bake in oven around 400 degrees:

Two eggs, 1 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup raisins, 1 cup coconut, 1-2 cup coconut, 1 teaspoon vanilla, butter size of an egg, 1-3 cup (or more) cream. A sprinkling of nuts on top. These fruit tarts are dainty and satisfying for picnics and are firm enough to eat without a fork.

Fruit Salad a Life Saver

Fresh fruit salad is a life saver for both housewives and appetites in hot weather. The following recipe for one portion is delightful: One-fourth cup each of cubed bananas and cubed pineapple, 7 or 8 sections each of orange and grapefruit. Place cubed bananas and pineapple in a heap in center of a cup-shaped lettuce leaf. Arrange orange and grapefruit sections alternately on top of bananas and pineapple. Garnish with strawberries, raspberries or blackberries. Serve with mayonnaise or whipped cream.

Sally Saver's Best Recipe Contest

Have you a favorite recipe for cookies? A well-filled jar of home-made cookies is practically a household necessity, what with the children dashing in simply ravenous after their outdoor romping; impromptu picnics in the office, the bridge crowd, unexpected guests, etc. Share your recipe with us and you may win a prize this week. It's easy to win. All you have to do is send your best cookie recipe, with your name and address, to Sally Saver, care of The Atlanta Constitution, not later than Tuesday of next week, and for every recipe published in this column Sally Saver will pay $1. ly and will retain its freshness after a long journey:

Plantation Marble Cake.

Two cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup butter, 2 eggs, well beaten; 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 2-3 cup of milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons molasses. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth.

Divide batter into two parts. To one part, add spices and molasses. Put by tablespoons into greased loaf pan, 8x4x3 inches, alternating the light and dark mixtures. Bake in moderate oven (350 F.) 1 hour and 15 minutes, or until done. Cut in slices for serving. (MRS.) ELLA MAE DICKEY, Fairmount, Ga.

If you like to cook outdoors try this recipe sometime. It's a favorite of Sally's and will be your favorite too. Make it in an iron dutch oven over an open fireplace in the woods and when you take the lid off it is guaranteed to bring man and beast just running from miles around. It smells so good and tastes so good. It is equally delicious made at home in the oven and is ideal for a Sunday night crowd. Serve it with a bowl of cold slaw, pickles, olives, corn muffins and coffee.

Picnic Beans and Sausage.

Use half a dozen tins of Boston style oven baked beans with pork and molasses. Put the beans an inch deep in a baking pan. Cover them with thin, slices of onion—about a half cupful of tomato ketchup. Over the top arrange sausages about two inches apart. Bake in moderate oven for an hour and after the first 30 minutes turn the sausages so they will brown on both sides. Small sausage cakes can be used instead of the link sausages and baked beans in tomato sauce may be used instead of the Boston style beans.

You might like to have some picnic menus and these two may have a new idea for you.

SOFTIES!

The chick's coat is soft as thistledown—but no softer than that sweater Junior is wearing. For that sweater is made of downy "Cellulose." Think how amazingly soft—and safe—a bathroom tissue made of the same Cellulose would be! That's what Northern Tissue is made of—it's the only nationally advertised tissue made of pure Cellulose! Ask for it—at your dealers. If you prefer a lower-priced paper, ask for Gauze—a lighter, cream-colored tissue.

"CHILD HEALTH DAY"

President Roosevelt has proclaimed May Day as "Child Health Day." The best celebration of the day any mother or father can make is informed action for the protection of his own children's health—the most precious possession of any individual.

Our Service Bureau at Washington has an authoritative, interesting, and instructive 24-page booklet on Child Health—a guide to training, feeding and bodily care of children from infancy to maturity, with dietary suggestions and descriptions of symptoms of ordinary diseases. If you wish a copy of this booklet, send the coupon below with a dime enclosed to cover return postage and handling costs:

NEWEST POLITICAL PARTY IS LAUNCHED BY LA FOLLETTE

In discussing the new party's emblem (a blue flag with a circle in the center and a cross representing a ballot mark, the Governor said: "The mark symbolizes the principle that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed."

In a final break with the national administration Governor La Follette paid tribute to the "brilliant leadership" of President Roosevelt but declared that leadership alone, no matter how great, "cannot mix political oil and water."

Lack of Support Hit.

He said that if the task of rehabilitation had been supported by popular confidence and affection for the leadership of Roosevelt, the job would have been done long ago under his administration, but that party dissension had undermined and hampered the administration.

The Governor declared the real division in America today is not between Republicans and Democrats, workers and farmers, capital and labor.

"It is between the earners on one side and the collectors on the other," he declared.

La Follette emphasized that the new party is neither a "Popular Front" nor a "conglomeration of conflicting opposing forces huddled together for temporary expediency."

"We do not seek, indeed we shall not accept, individuals or groups who seek us out because they are embittered or disgruntled," he asserted. "We seek only those who come with complete conviction, and without reservation. The movement that unites America must be itself united."

Principles Announced.

La Follette announced the principles to which the new party will give allegiance are stated in its articles of association. They are: (1) The ownership and control of money and credit, without qualification or reservation, must be under public and not private control.

(2) The organized power of the nation must stop at nothing short of necessary steps to restore to every American the absolute right to earn his living by the sweat of his brow.

(3) We believe in the basic concepts of American government and, in particular, that grants of power always should be safeguarded against abuse. Our present governmental system is in sad need of modernizing. One important step is to grant the executive

Four Are Rescued From Burning House

Three young children and a 68-year-old invalid woman were carried to safety yesterday morning when flames damaged the home of Mr. and Mrs. King Story at 273 Whitehall street.

The children, Charlene, 1 month old; Kenneth, 4 years old, and Josephine, 3, were rescued by their parents, while firemen carried out Mrs. Alice Bentley, a widow, whose room was in the rear of the house.

The blaze was quickly extinguished. Damage was slight. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

branch power to get things done—to get to work on the problems of agriculture, business and industry. But, as we have demonstrated in Wisconsin, this can be done with ample guarantees against arbitrary or dictatorial abuse of such power.

"(4) Those who work on the farm and in the city must be given security, not a security founded on producing less for more, or working less for more. We propose security founded on a definite decent annual income for all, measured by our contribution both in quality and quantity.

Coddling Opposed.

"(5) We flatly oppose every form of coddling, or spoon-feeding the American people—whether it be those on relief—whether it be farmers or workers—whether it be business or industry. No government on earth can successfully manage, regulate industry and direct the numerous details that make for healthy families or successful business.

"(6) We believe that this hemisphere—all of it—was set aside by our Creator for the ultimate destiny of man. Here, a vast continent was kept virgin for centuries. Here it was ordained that man should work out the final act in the great drama of life. From the arctic to Cape Horn let no foreign power trespass. Our hemisphere was divinely destined to evolve peace, security and plenty. It shall remain inviolate for that sacred purpose."

Waited for Prosperity.

"During the four years of the Hoover administration," La Follette said, "we waited for prosperity which was just around the corner. As we waited we failed to produce for our normal capacity. We lived from our accumulated fat. At the end of three years of waiting, private business was nearly bankrupt. The books of our banks, insurance companies, railroads and thousands of individuals and corporations were 'in the red.'"

"During the six years of the Roosevelt administration we transferred red ink from the books of private enterprise to the book-keeping of our local, state and national government."

"This well meant but futile experiment has been expensive. Through private and public borrowing we have sought to maintain the American standard of living without producing enough real wealth to support it. We approach the point where we cannot much longer borrow for that sort of enterprise."

"The day of reckoning may not come this year or next, but the cold, inescapable truth stands before us. The American standard of living today is supported by an enormous mass of outworn public and private debt."

POST OFFICE SIFTS RUSSELL LETTERS

Tells Counsel He Will Be Expected To Pay.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) Postal officials asked Horace Russell, of Atlanta, Ga., today to give his own version of events leading to his resignation last week as general counsel of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Russell resigned April 19, a few hours after Representative Church, Republican, Illinois, charged in the house that the attorney had mailed in government envelopes, postage free, "more than a million" letters praising the legal ability of O. B. Taylor, another HOLC attorney who had just resigned to enter private law practice.

In a letter which he declined to make public, Assistant Postmaster General Ramsey Black asked Russell to submit to the Post Office Department "all the facts" pertaining to the letters, including the exact number mailed.

If the letters should have borne postage, Black wrote Russell, the department would expect him to pay whatever was due.

UNIFORM DIVORCES BACKED BY WOMEN

League of Voters Indorses Nation-Wide Law.

ST. LOUIS, April 28.—(AP)—The biennial convention of the National League of Women Voters, charting the organization's program for the next two years, voted today to support uniform marriage and divorce laws.

Although several state Leagues have worked for such laws, this was the first time the League as a whole has included them among its nation-wide objectives.

LINDBERGH TO LIVE ON FRENCH ISLAND

SEVEN OAKS, KENT, England, April 28.—(UP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will give up their home, "Long Barn," near Weald, toward the end of May, it was learned today, preparatory to taking up their residence on the French island of Iliac off the Brittany coast which Lindbergh recently purchased. The island is near the Isle of Saint Gildas, owned by Dr. Alexis Carrel, with whom the fly: is engaged in scientific researches.

jelly, rolled and dusted with powdered sugar and a little cinnamon, if you like. Omelette aux fraises (with strawberries) makes an excellent and nutritious dessert.

Swedish Custards.
Sweden has a fondness for custards and makes use of them with fish or meat. A baking dish is partly filled with chopped meat, flaked fish or chopped vegetables, a custard poured over and the dish set in a pan of water, then in the oven to bake.

Portuguese.
Portugal loves eggs poached and placed on mounds of rice which has been steamed in tomato sauce. These are served with a cheese sauce.

And here is a sweet egg recipe which Germans call:

Zimmelsanger.
(Cinnamon Sticks)

Beat four egg whites until stiff and stir in three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Continue stirring for about 15 minutes, or until the sugar is practically dissolved. Then add one ounce of cinnamon and 14 ounces of powdered almonds, stirring to a paste. Place little strips of the paste on a buttered cookie sheet and bake in a moderate oven.

TATE MUCH IMPROVED.

EARLE NAMES BARD ATTORNEY GENERAL

Former U. S. Prosecutor To Probe Margiotte Charges of Pennsylvania Graft.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 28.—(P)—A former federal prosecutor, Guy K. Bard, became Pennsylvania's attorney general tonight and started an immediate investigation of charges of "bought" legislation made by Charles J. Margiotte, who was ousted from office by Governor George H. Earle.

Margiotte asserted in a radio speech tonight Earle had tried to remove him from the cabinet several times in the past three years. Margiotte declared he had placed before judges of the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) court evidence to support his demand for a grand jury investigation of his charges that money passed between "brewing interests" and Democratic leaders for "favorable legislation" in 1935.

Bard, who prosecuted bank cases in Detroit and Los Angeles as a special assistant United States attorney general, resigned from the public utility commission and took the attorney general's office after it was refused by Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania law school.

FRANKLIN HOOPER RETIRES.
NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—Franklin Henry Hooper, 76, editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica for the last 40 years, retired today. He was succeeded by Walter Yust, associate editor and former newspaperman.

Premier Denies Dionne's Plaints Have Any Merit
TORONTO, April 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Ontario's premier, Mitchell F. Hepburn, declared today that a judicial investigation of the affairs of the Dionne quintuplets was unwarranted and that none would be made.

Olivia Dionne, father of the five famous little girls, asked Attorney General Vordon Conant for an investigation of the general administration of his daughters' affairs, including handling of their fortune, now said to approximate $800,000.

New League Is Formed To Oppose Third Term
NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—An organization called "The National League to Oppose a Third Term for President" was incorporated today in New York.

Bennett E. Siegelstein, general counsel, said it was the start of a national movement to limit presidents to a two-term maximum.

The physicians paid tribute to their dead at memorial exercises conducted by Dr. A. A. Davidson, of Augusta.

Election Today.
Tomorrow, the delegates will select new officers, pick a convention city and consider various committee reports. Dr. Edgar Shanks, secretary, reported 687 registered today.

The association today awarded first honors at an elaborate scientific exhibit to a rubber suction cap made from a child's rubber ball.

The device is used in experimental work at the University of Georgia Medical School in aiding delivery in cases where labor has been obstructed, or when the child's head is turned backward.

Dr. Richard Torpin, of the medical school staff, presented the exhibit.

Physicians expressed considerable interest in the delivery device. A rubber ball cut in half and fitted with rubber studs and a suction attachment, it fits over the fetal head, and exact pressure by suction may be applied up to 60 pounds.

The physician is able to turn the baby's head to normal delivery position if necessary, and may also use it to assist in delivery when labor is not strong enough.

Junior League Wins.
Chosen for second honors by the scientific committee was an exhibit presented by Dr. Henry Poer, of Atlanta, for the volunteer workers of the Atlanta Junior League.

Clinical, experimental and laboratory tests of 555 cases of goitre were reported on. Dr. Poer credited the Junior Leaguers with "doing everything except the actual medical work." Miss Josephine Meador and Miss Bess L'Engle, both of Atlanta, represented the Junior League.

Another Atlanta exhibit took third honors. It was Dr. Edgar

Drug Must Not Be Regarded As Cure-All, Atlanta Doctor Asserts.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 28.—(P) A lively session on uses of sulfanilamide occupied the session of the Medical Association of Georgia today when Dr. Robert M. Harbin Jr., of Rome, presented clinical observations on the use of the drug.

Dr. A. Park McGinty, of Atlanta, discussing the report, warned doctors they "must not regard this drug as a cure-all. Beyond a doubt it is useful in many cases, but we should guard against the tendency to consider any new drug as a specific for too many diseases."

Dr. Samuel J. Sinkoe, of Atlanta, in a paper read today, said he had found a high degree of effectiveness in the recently discovered drug sulfanilamide, or prontosil, for the treatment of gonorrhoea.

"In a series of 100 cases," he said, "sulfanilamide has proven to be the most valuable drug at our disposal."

The physicians paid tribute to their dead at memorial exercises conducted by Dr. A. A. Davidson, of Augusta.

The device is used in experimental work at the University of Georgia Medical School in aiding delivery in cases where labor has been obstructed, or when the child's head is turned backward.

Dr. Richard Torpin, of the medical school staff, presented the exhibit.

Physicians expressed considerable interest in the delivery device. A rubber ball cut in half and fitted with rubber studs and a suction attachment, it fits over the fetal head, and exact pressure by suction may be applied up to 60 pounds.

The physician is able to turn the baby's head to normal delivery position if necessary, and may also use it to assist in delivery when labor is not strong enough.

Junior League Wins.
Chosen for second honors by the scientific committee was an exhibit presented by Dr. Henry Poer, of Atlanta, for the volunteer workers of the Atlanta Junior League.

Clinical, experimental and laboratory tests of 555 cases of goitre were reported on. Dr. Poer credited the Junior Leaguers with "doing everything except the actual medical work." Miss Josephine Meador and Miss Bess L'Engle, both of Atlanta, represented the Junior League.

Another Atlanta exhibit took third honors. It was Dr. Edgar

Shoots Dream Snake Blows Off His Toes

A bad dream cost a Fulton county man two toes early yesterday morning.

Tom Hembree, of the Alpha-reta-Roswell highway, dreamed that a snake was wound around his left foot. Still asleep, he walked out of his bedroom, obtained a shotgun and fired at the "reptile."

The blast and pain shocked him into wakefulness. He had blown off two toes. A neighbor took him to Grady hospital, where his condition last night was reported as fair.

MRS. C. D. M'KINNEY DIES IN FLORIDA

Wife of Decatur Civic Leader Had Been Ill Since Operation Last Year.

Mrs. Charles D. McKinney, 44, wife of a prominent Decatur civic leader, died Wednesday morning in a Jacksonville (Fla.) hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mr. McKinney, who has a law office in Atlanta, is chairman of the Decatur citizens' committee, and active in the city's political life, was at his wife's bedside when she died. He had received word that she was seriously ill Tuesday.

A native of Gleason, Tenn., Mrs. McKinney lived much of her life in Jacksonville. Four years ago, on her marriage to Mr. McKinney, she moved to Decatur and they have made their home at 226 West College avenue. She was a member of the Decatur Presbyterian church.

Last year, she underwent a major operation, from which she never recovered fully. Several months ago she was advised by physicians to go to Florida and until she was committed to the hospital recently she had lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Milam, in Jacksonville.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in Jacksonville, conducted by the Rev. A. J. Kissling, pastor of the Riverside Presbyterian church there. Burial was in the Oak Lawn cemetery.

Surviving, besides the parents and husband, are two sons by a former marriage, Ross M. Dixon and Bruce Edson Dixon, and one brother, Ralph L. Milam, all of Jacksonville.

BANKS' LOAN RESERVES INCREASE $90,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP)—Lendable excess reserves of the nation's banks increased $90,000,000 to $2,580,000,000 in the week ended April 27, the federal reserve board said today.

The increase was due primarily to spending of the Treasury's new $1,400,000,000 cash resource as the result of sterilization of gold.

Julius Rosenwald Fund Awards Fellowships to 18 Southerners

Leroy E. Loemker, Emory University Professor and Thomas A. Hart, West Georgia College Teacher, Among Those Honored in South.

CHICAGO, April 28.—(AP)—The Julius Rosenwald Fund announced today award of fellowships to 18 white southerners, including two college presidents and one artist.

One of the college presidents, Rufus C. Harris, who heads Tulane University, plans studies of university developments in Europe, the announcement said. The other, George D. Humphrey, of Mississippi State College, will study regional culture in Mississippi.

The artist is Charles E. Shannon, of Montgomery, Ala., 24 years old, who has won recognition for his interpretations of southern life. He plans creative work in the painting of southern types.

Individual amounts of the awards average around $1,600.

MISS EDITH HOPKINS DIES IN HOSPITAL

Alonzo Richardson School Faculty Member Had Been Teacher Since 1926.

Miss Edith Hopkins, faculty member of the Alonzo Richardson High school, College Park, died early last night in a private hospital after a five days' illness. She lived at 631 West Rugby avenue, College Park.

Born in Lithonia, Miss Hopkins had resided in College Park for the last 14 years and had been associated with the Fulton county school system since 1926. She was a graduate of Young Harris College and received her master's degree from the University of Georgia. A member of the First Baptist church of College Park, she was active in religious and community affairs. Professor of Latin and English at the school, she was leader of the local Girl Reserves.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Elbert M. Uphavay and Miss Ethel Hopkins, both of College Park; an aunt, Mrs. J. L. McDaniel, Norcross, and four uncles, Dr. J. B. Hopkins, Jackson, Ga.; Dr. F. T. Hopkins, Decatur; Leo Hopkins, Norcross, and R. E. L. Costan, Fort Worth, Texas.

Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

HEAD CLASSIFIES WINE AS LIQUOR

Commissioner Permits Sale in State Stores.

Wine can be sold in state liquor stores, State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head ruled yesterday.

Commissioner Head said wine containing more than 21 per cent alcohol is liquor, and is therefore covered by a license to sell liquor, but a separate wine license is necessary if wine of less than 21 per cent alcohol is sold.

The same regulations that cover liquor must apply to wine sold in liquor stores, Commissioner Head ruled. The wine must be sold by the package and the package must not be broken or the wine consumed on the premises where sold.

The ruling does not apply to beer, because it is the expectation that a bottle of beer will be opened and drunk immediately, Head said.

FARLEY FORESEES BALANCED BUDGET

Business Co-operation To Pave Way, He Says.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 28.—(AP)—James A. Farley, the national Democratic chairman, declared tonight a balanced federal budget would come quickly if business co-operated with government but slowly if the country was "scared into panic" by foes of the President.

"Until business is ready to take over the problem of general re-employment the government has no option but to continue the job," he added in an address prepared for delivery at a Democratic dinner here. "That is all that the relief measures now before congress purpose or intend."

MERITA STAYS FRESH
2 TO 4 DAYS LONGER THAN ANY OTHER
BREADS TESTED

"BAKED IN FRESHNESS"

It is simple for a baker to deliver a fresh loaf of bread to your grocer. But to bake that same loaf so it will stay fresh in your bread box until the last slice is consumed, is a different story. That calls for the Merita method of "Baked-in Freshness."

Only Merita Baked-in Flavor Bread has this lasting freshness. Exhaustive "bread box" tests, using Merita and other brands of bread, have been carefully and impartially conducted under all kinds of conditions by the Merita Research Laboratories. These tests prove conclusively that Merita will stay fresh two to four days longer than other breads tested.

ard and Schilling with accepting the money not to arrest the persons paying them for violation of the prohibition law.

The three indictments, returned late yesterday after an all-day session in which the jury summoned more than 40 witnesses, are to be followed by more indictments today and tomorrow, Special Prosecutor E. E. Andrews said.

At the outset of the present inquiry into graft among city and county law enforcement officers, the grand jury announced it would return indictments against officers known to have accepted bribes "to influence their official behavior in the official performance of their duty."

Four additional indictments are expected today, while three more are expected to be returned tomorrow. The grand jury will conclude its term tomorrow.

Policeman 15 Years.

Davis has been a city policeman for more than 15 years. Schilling entered the sheriff's office on the ticket of the late Sheriff J. I. Lowry and had served 21 years until he went out of office on the defeated ticket of James D. Bazemore. Howard had been a deputy under the late Sheriff Lowry for more than eight years, although he left the sheriff's office before the recent special election.

All three took the witness stand in the trial of Burns last week on 37 counts of bribery and denied they ever had accepted bribes from Burns or any other person.

Burns, convicted, sentenced to seven years and fined $4,000, was charged with paying bribes every month to Schilling and Howard over a period of a year not to arrest him or his men.

He also was charged with paying a bribe to Davis last fall not to arrest him or confiscate his liquor.

Others Named Recipients.

Four other former deputy sheriffs were named as recipients of bribes from Burns, although grand jury action has not been taken against them. Two, O. J. Stanley and W. C. (Cap) Joyner, testified they received immunity from the grand jury to confess and to turn state's evidence at the trial of Burns.

S. G. Davies and W. L. Moore, the other two former deputies, denied they ever accepted any bribes. Moore took the stand during Burns' trial, while Davies was reported to be in the Veterans' hospital here.

A former bondsman was reported to have told the grand jury yesterday he acted as "go-between" for a bootlegger and three city detectives in payoffs for "protection."

Grand jurors, however, refused to comment on indictments to be returned today and tomorrow.

Warrants for arrest and designation of bond for those indicted yesterday are expected today.

The three indictments were returned shortly after 5 o'clock and were received by Judge John D. Humphries after he answered an emergency call to return to the courthouse to accept the true bills.

Judge Humphries will organize and charge the new grand jury Monday, while Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy will discharge the present jury tomorrow.

The jury, in its presentments, will make a strong recommendation that the incoming jury take up the probe of police graft and continue the investigation until "the situation is cleaned up," the grand jury has announced.

Two hours of routine business is scheduled for the jury's attention this morning; following which the special graft inquiry will be taken up. The grand jury's presentments are expected to contain references to the system of keeping records at public works camps in the county.

Meanwhile, the probe into illegal release rackets, which has taken a back seat during the graft probe, was taken up briefly yesterday when a former prisoner at Bellwood camp was questioned. The grand jury has said indictments against persons engaged in the illegal release racket will be returned.

DAY FOR CHILDREN IS SET AT FESTIVAL

Saturday at Lakewood Park To Be for Youngsters.

Saturday will be children's day at the spring festival of the American Legion being held at Lakewood park.

Following a conference between owners of the Royal American Shows, the Legion and Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair, announcement was made yesterday that arrangements had been completed for the occasion.

Boys and girls Saturday afternoon, up to 16 years of age, may visit the exposition, with no charge being made for admission at the gate. Not only that, but Royal American officials agreed to place a five-cent admission charge on every attraction on the grounds.

No charge is made at any time for automobile parking.

W. S. VOLLMER RITES HELD HERE YESTERDAY

Funeral services for William S. Vollmer, 77, retired lumberman, who died Wednesday at his home, 374 North avenue, N. E., were held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes, with the Rev. T. V. Morrison officiating. Burial will be this morning in Atlanta, Ala.

Born in Williamsport, Pa., he had made his home here for the last 20 years. He was the father of Lula Vollmer, noted playwright.

HOUSE UNIT FAVORS AIR CONTROL BILL

administration, would have a chairman and a vice chairman and one other member, to be appointed for terms of two, four and six years when the commission is first organized.

The administration also would be empowered to encourage and foster the development of civil aeronautics and air commerce in the United States and abroad, and to encourage the establishment of civil airways, landing areas, and other air navigation facilities.

The authority, through the administrator, would make field surveys of the existing system of airports and report to the congress not later than February 1, 1939, definite recommendations as to whether the federal government should participate in the construction, improvement, development, operation or maintenance of a national system of airports.

Safety Powers Conferred. General safety powers and duties also would be conferred upon the Authority, which would issue operating certificates to air carriers if it found that such carriers were properly equipped to operate safely.

All executive functions of the Authority would be subject to the general direction of the President. The Howell commission report was made to the congress on January 22, 1935, after the commission of five members had made an extensive study of air commerce both here and abroad, and had held public hearings for two months or more.

Immediately after he had been appointed chairman by President Roosevelt, Mr. Howell went to Italy, France and the other leading countries of the continent to make a first-hand study of aviation there.

Now, after more than three years since the Howell commission submitted its report to the congress, the house reports out a bill fashioned after the report's main recommendation: e. g., that a commission, or authority, take over the administration of civil aviation.

During hearings by the Howell commission, the chairman had before it such outstanding aviation experts as Dr. Hugo Eckener, of the German Zeppelin Company; Charles A. Lindbergh, first to fly the Atlantic solo; Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, World War flying ace, and others of distinction in the field of aviation.

As a result of Dr. Eckener's expert testimony, Chairman Howell joined in a recommendation that "it should be the policy of the United States to undertake further construction and operation of rigid airships in naval and commercial services."

Seemingly aware that the congress would eventually come around to his way of thinking, Chairman Howell, in the conclusion of his report, said:

"When this commission met for the first time in the early part of July, 1935, only two of its members had ever before known each other. We represented five radically different types of experiences and as many distinct approaches to our collective problem. However, we feel that we have attained a sincere unanimity upon the essentials. The history of American aviation has not been conspicuous for unanimity of opinion, and that five men of such widely varied background could come to so full a measure of agreement we take to be an encouraging sign."

Besides Mr. Howell, the report was signed by Edward P. Wagner, vice chairman and former assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aviation; Albert J. Berres, labor's representative; Jerome C. Hunsaker, a well-known authority on aeronautics, and Franklin K. Lane Jr., son of a former secretary of the interior.

WALDECK REPORTS REDFERN IS DEAD

Explorer Says He Found Definite Proof.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, April 28.—(AP)—Theodore J. Waldeck, New York explorer, returning from four months of perilous search for trace of Paul Redfern, missing American aviator, declared today Redfern was dead.

"I found the place where the plane crashed and definite proof that the gallant aviator is dead," Waldeck said.

He gave no further details of his discovery, saying first he must forward a report to Dr. Frederick C. Redfern, of Columbia, S. C., father of the flyer.

Redfern disappeared in August, 1927, in an attempt to fly non-stop from Brunswick, Ga., to Brazil.

COUNSEL TO SIFT 'KID'S' ESTATE LOSS

Receivership Hearing Is Set for Monday.

LOS ANGELES, April 28.—(AP) Counsel for 23-year-old Jackie Coogan said today an answer will be sought in court Monday to the question of how the $4,000,000 Jackie estimates he earned as a child film actor has dwindled to $545,924.

The latter figure was reported yesterday by a receiver appointed in Jackie's accounting suit against his stepfather and his mother, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bernstein.

U. S. WILL CLARIFY ANTI-TRUST POLICY

Will Give Greater Publicity to Prosecutions, Provide Guide for Business.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—The federal government will give greater publicity to its anti-trust investigations and prosecutions in the future in order to provide business a guide and a warning, Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold announced tonight.

He said in an address before the Trade and Commerce Bar Association of New York it was well known that businessmen had always found difficulty in interpreting the policy of the department as to what would and would not be prosecuted under the anti-trust laws.

"Therefore, acting under the advice of the attorney general," he said, "I propose to announce in connection with the particular cases or investigations which are instituted in the future enough information so that the exercise of the discretion in selecting the cases may be as consistent as public announcement and public criticism can make it."

ARGENTINA FORBIDS MAY DAY MEETINGS

BUENOS AIRES, April 28.—(P)—To help assure a quiet May Day, the Argentine ministry of interior has forbidden display of foreign flags at public meetings next Sunday and the capital police department has denied a Nazi German application to hold a mass meeting at Luna park.

The measures were taken to avoid possible incidents between Nazi and Argentine labor organizations, all of whom observe May 1 as a holiday.

Publishers Re-elect J. G. Stahlman; Club Warned of Advertiser's Duty Policing of Advertising Copy Shouldn't Be Necessary, N. Y. Group Told.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—James G. Stahlman, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, warned advertisers today that they, like newspaper editors, "must jealously guard" the reading material they place before the public.

This, he told a luncheon of the Advertising Club of New York, is a necessity toward maintaining a free press in the United States.

"The daily newspapers," Stahlman asserted, "are still the primary news disseminators and, likewise, the most powerful agencies of public opinion."

"The press of this country is not venal or emasculated. It is neither impotent nor cowardly. As a whole it is virile and courageous and it is fulfilling its obligations to a citizenship from which it derives all its rights and privileges."

Concerning the maintenance of the power of the press, Stahlman asserted:

"I have said frequently that a free press is no publisher's right. It is the right of a people in a democracy to have access to the truth through the printed and spoken word. Newspapers and all those engaged in related enterprises are but trustees of that right."

"The advertiser must jealously guard his copy, just as much as the man on the desk in the editorial rooms of any newspaper. It should not be necessary for newspapers, magazines, the radio or other media to police advertising copy."

Newspapers have sold and will continue to sell more merchandise than any other medium yet devised, Stahlman said.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association passed resolutions today condemning what it called unconstitutional acts of the senate lobby investigating committee and the National Labor Relations Board.

One convention resolution condemned the senate lobby committee for efforts "to intimidate citizens in the exercise of their constitutionally guaranteed right to petition congress by attempting to compel them to turn over to the committee by the command of a dragnet subpoena their private records, papers and accounts."

It praised Frank E. Gannett, publisher of Rochester, N. Y., and chairman of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, for resisting the committee.

Another resolution warned publishers to resist any effort by the labor relations board to "call publishers to account for material they have printed and circulated," as the board, said the resolution, has done in two instances.

PUBLISHERS WARNED
BY THOMAS E. DEWEY
NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey told the publishers of the nation's newspapers tonight to look after their local political machines if they would improve the administration of national affairs.

"So long as municipal government is mismanaged," he said, "we have no reasonable right to expect its counterpart in Washington to be much different or better. If the roots are poisoned, so must be the tree. Regardless of the party in power, we must first clean up our own backyards," Dewey said.

With a few "notable exceptions," he declared the great cities of America "are still controlled by political bosses."

prominently as a possible choice to be the first paid president of the New York Stock Exchange. He is a close friend of the President.

Woodruff has been president of Coca-Cola since 1923, in which job he has built up the company's business in foreign countries.

President Roosevelt devoted part of today to conferences about his forthcoming message to congress on monopoly. It was reported that the framework of his recommendations, and a bill to carry them out, had been completed.

There were some indications that the message, expected to contain alterations in the anti-trust laws, might call for some action at this session of congress. Previously there had been predictions that the message would merely call for investigation for the purpose of legislation next year.

Attending today's conferences on the subject were Attorney General Cummings, Robert Jackson, solicitor general; Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, and Benjamin Cohen, adviser on bill framing.

WOODRUFF LEADER IN BUSINESS AFFAIRS

Robert W. Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola Company, who has been suggested as a member of President Roosevelt's proposed advisory council of businessmen, is a former resident of Atlanta, where he was a leader in business, banking and social circles.

Born in Columbus on December 6, 1889, the son of Ernest and Emily Winship Woodruff, he moved to Atlanta to attend the Georgia Military Academy and Emory University.

Joining the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation in 1911, he rose rapidly from the position of Atlanta branch manager to general manager of the company. He joined the White Motor Company, of Cleveland, in 1913, and in 1923 became president of the Coca-Cola Company, serving for a time as president of both the White Motor Company and the Coca-Cola Company.

Nashville Editor, 45, Is One of Youngest Men Ever to Head Association.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, was re-elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the 52d annual convention today.

Stahlman, 45, one of the youngest men ever to head the organization, was elevated from the vice presidency last year. He is the third generation of his family to be connected with the Nashville Banner.

John S. McCarrens, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, was re-elected vice president and Walter M. Dear, of the Jersey City (N. J.) Jersey Journal, was retained as treasurer.

that this money, plus other funds on hand, would permit settlement of overdue salaries for the final two weeks in March.

April salaries fall due Saturday. These, the Governor assured the teachers, would be paid on or before July 1, 1938, under a plan for drawing available money from the general, stabilization and text book funds.

With completion of the March salary payments, the state will have met six of the seven months school term guaranteed by law. The teachers are being paid 100 per cent of their legislative appropriation, while other state departments, including the office of School Superintendent M. D. Collins, are operating on a 74 per cent basis.

SENATOR INTRODUCES CHICKAMAUGA BILL

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(P)—Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, introduced today a bill calling upon President Roosevelt to appoint three residents of Chattanooga, Tenn., to arrange celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Battles of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge September 18-24.

The bill authorizes appropriation of $35,000.

'Something Being Put Over on Us, Says Ford at Publishers' Meeting

Asserts Roosevelt Is Doing the Best He Can; "I Will Help You, With the Assistance of My Son," Declares Motor Magnate.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—A day after his closeted two-hour talk with President Roosevelt, Henry Ford said tonight that "we are all on the spot" and that the people have "a leader who is putting something over them."

Whether those two cryptic remarks, made in separate statements, were intended as answers to the ceaseless bombardment of questions about his visit to Washington yesterday, the elderly industrialist gave no hint.

Asked if his remarkably genial mood was attributable to his White House conversation, he replied with a smile: "Well, you never heard me say anything about the President, did you? What's the use? He's trying to do the best he can like everybody else."

Then tonight, in an enigmatic six-second, one-sentence speech at the Bureau of Advertising dinner for the American Newspaper Publishers Association convention, he added:

"We are all on the spot, and stick to your guns and I will help you, with the assistance of my son, all I can."

Asked to amplify that, he added: "We fellows are on the spot just as much as the press is on the spot. The whole thing is to kill competition."

Pressed further to say "who was putting whom on the spot," he said: "The men behind the government, the powers that be, are after us just as much as they are after the press."

Earlier in the day he gave an interview at the Ritz-Carlton hotel. "People must wake up and go to work," said Ford. "Too many people try to live off money. Money isn't wealth. It's just a token of wealth. We must create wealth."

SPURNED HUSBAND FALLS TO HIS DEATH

Tom Dennard Succumbs in Hospital to Injuries as Reconciliation Fails.

Injuries in a plunge from a second-story window early Wednesday morning proved fatal last night to Tom Dennard, 30, of 400 Piedmont avenue, N. E.

Taken to Grady hospital with a broken back, Dennard told police an attempted reconciliation with his estranged wife failed.

He jumped or fell 25 feet from his bedroom window.

Mrs. Dennard spent all day yesterday at the bedside of her husband.

Surviving in addition to his wife, are a daughter, Margaret Anne; a son, Allen Dennard, and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral services and burial will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon in Pineview, near Hawkinsville, Georgia.

Plant-to-Prosper Farmers Urged To Speed Entries in Prize Contest

Dean Chapman Stresses That Sunday and Monday Will Be Last Days To File Applications in Constitution's Competition for Planters of Georgia.

By DR. PAUL W. CHAPMAN, Dean of College of Agriculture, University of Georgia.

Sunday is the last day to enter The Atlanta Constitution's Plant-to-Prosper contest, except in communities in which no mail is handled on Sunday. In such instances the postmark of the following day, Monday, will be accepted as compliance with entrance rules.

Because the major aims of this contest are identical with the farming plans which should receive our attention at this time, it is hoped that many who have not yet enrolled, will avail themselves of the chance which still remains to enter.

The Plant-to-Prosper awards are to be based upon (1) diversification of income; (2) living at home; (3) conservation of the soil, and (4) home improvement.

If there ever was a time when we should be interested in the first three of the items named, it is 1938.

Because of the reduction in the acreage of the basic cash crops, we must be interested in diversified income and in living at home as a means of sustaining the farm income of the people of the state.

Can Earn $3,000,000.

We should be interested in soil conservation, not only as a good thing at any time, but because the farmers of Georgia can earn $3,000,000 this year in soil conserving payments under the AAA.

With respect to home improvement, this is largely made possible by the farming program set forth in the other divisions of the contest program.

If the farm income of Georgia is as great in 1938 as it has been for the past two years, it will be because diversification has been brought about, and this has been great. We have, for example, doubled income from livestock within a period of five years.

Our acreage reduction under the AAA this year amounts to about 600,000 acres. This is one-twentieth of the cultivated land of the state. It is equal in area to 10 or 12 Georgia counties.

500,000 Acres Less Cotton.

Our reduction in cotton alone amounts to about 500,000 acres. This year we will plant 2,150,000 acres in cotton. This compares with 3,719,000 acres in cotton in 1928, and 5,431,000 acres 20 years ago.

In other words, our crop this year will occupy less than 50 per cent of that required in 1918.

What are farmers to do with the 600,000 acres taken out of basic cash crops?

This is the most important question facing the people of the state just at this time. It is not an easy question to answer, or one that can be considered lightly.

It would seem, however, that there are three guiding principles to take into consideration.

These are:

(1) The planting of these acres that will add to the food and feed crops and consequently the 1938 farm income; (2) the crops that will add to the fertility of the soil and increase the income of 1939; and (3) and closely related to the second—planted to those crops that will enable the farmers to qualify for the maximum AAA soil conserving payments for which the farm can qualify this year.

Other Crops Profitable.

If all this acreage were planted to corn, we could use the crop. But there may be more profitable crops than corn.

Runner peanuts should be planted so far as it is possible to hog them off. This will probably be as profitable use as may be found, in many sections of the state.

But it may be found that the best use of a large portion of this land can best be developed to the soil building practices which qualify for payments under the AAA.

There are 17 practices which will qualify for payment. Under these the farmers of Georgia received $1,700,000 two years ago; last year they qualified for payments of about $2,000,000. This year they can get, as much as $3,000,000. But since this is not a required part of the program; since it is optional with every farmer, we may not get anything like this sum.

Eligible to Payments.

The practices for which payments will be made—up to the soil building allowance for each farm—are listed below:

1. Establishing permanent pastures.

2. Seeding winter legumes.

3. Seeding lespedeza, etc.

4. Growing manure crops.

5. Interplanted summer legumes.

For each of these practices a definite payment is made—$7.50 per acre for planting trees; $3 per acre for planting and establishing permanent pastures. The complete list of payments is available in the office of any county agent.

Add to Future Income.

All of these are desirable practices. All will add to the farm income of Georgia in the years to come. All should be followed so far as possible, especially if we are to control erosion and develop a livestock industry. And it is hoped that Georgia will qualify for all the payments that are possible under the AAA program.

Many of the crops that may be planted can serve several different uses. For example, let us take cowpeas. This crop might be planted on the diversified acres as a hay or grazing crop. It might be planted for soil improvement. For this purpose the farmer could qualify for a payment of $1.50 an acre and still pick the peas. All of these things must be thought about in connection with the farm income of 1938.

All of these things which have been considered in this statement are related to the Plant-to-Prosper contest. It is for this reason that we are anxious for a large number of contestants to take part in this contest. It serves as a guide to the farming program that we must develop in the state. The figures given on acreage of basic crops would certainly make this apparent to anyone who will consider the question—how are we going to sustain the farm income of Georgia?

FLOWER SHOW TODAY.

COVINGTON, Ga., April 28.—The Covington Garden Club will hold its annual flower show Friday afternoon in the gardens of Mrs. R. O. Arnold, on Monticello street. Stanley Hastings, of Atlanta, will act as judge. Hundreds of entries will be displayed.

Atlanta selected two city champions in The Constitution-National Spelling Bee yesterday, but everything was entirely okay.

There wasn't any overlap. They represented different school systems.

First, the private and parochial schools, under the direction of Miss Thyra S. Askew, of the North Avenue Presbyterian school, held their final which resulted in the victory of William Wright Daniel, 13, of the eighth grade of Marietta College, over seven other contestants.

Public System Competes.

Later in the afternoon 60 school champions of the Atlanta public schools competed at Commercial High school and Warren Coleman II, of the high seventh grade, at East Junior High school, became champion of the public system, receiving the certificate which carries eligibility to the State Final to be held May 7 to determine Georgia's best speller.

Young Wright, who likewise will take part in the State Final, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter W. Daniel, of 1705 Pelham road, N. E. The runner-up in the private and parochial system contest was Martha Rumble, of the eighth grade of North Avenue Presbyterian school, who failed to spell "criticism" accurately. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lester Rumble, of 538 Orme circle.

The public school champion resides at 1052 Amsterdam avenue. The runner-up was Betty Styron, 11, of the low seventh grade of O'Keefe Junior High school, who spelled incorrectly the word "pomegranate." She lives at 828 Virginia circle, N. E.

Others who competed in the private and parochial system competition were Jessie Strickland and Jane Bailey, of Washington Seminary; Virginia Dixon, of North Avenue Presbyterian school; Rosemary Harbin, of Eileen Anthony, of Sacred Heart school, and William Penn White, of Marietta College.

Dr. H. H. Bixler, director of research and guidance of Atlanta's schools and who will serve as the word expert in the State Final, was in charge of the public school competition.

Officials besides Miss Askew in the private system competition were the Rev. Father P. H. Dagneau, of Marietta; Miss Bessie Sharp, of North Avenue; Sister Annie Marie, of Sacred Heart, and Mrs. C. G. Morenus.

Youth Has Inning at City's Spelling Bee Finals

Atlanta's public schools found their champion in The Constitution-National Spelling Bee yesterday in 11-year-old Warren Coleman (third from left), of the high seventh grade of East Junior High school. Shown are Marion Hine, of Mary Lin school, and Betty Jane McMullen, of Moreland Avenue school, who tied for the elementary championship; the city champion, Betty Styron, O'Keefe Junior High school, runner-up; Carolyn DeLong, Maddox Junior High school, who was third, and Miss Adelaide Setz, competition official.

First, the private and parochial schools, under the direction of Miss Thyra S. Askew, of the North Avenue Presbyterian school, held their final which resulted in the victory of William Wright Daniel, 13, of the eighth grade of Marietta College, over seven other contestants.

Public System Competes.

Later in the afternoon 60 school champions of the Atlanta public schools competed at Commercial High school and Warren Coleman II, of the high seventh grade, at East Junior High school, became champion of the public system, receiving the certificate which carries eligibility to the State Final to be held May 7 to determine Georgia's best speller.

Young Wright, who likewise will take part in the State Final, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter W. Daniel, of 1705 Pelham road, N. E. The runner-up in the private and parochial system contest was Martha Rumble, of the eighth grade of North Avenue Presbyterian school, who failed to spell "criticism" accurately. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lester Rumble, of 538 Orme circle.

The public school champion resides at 1052 Amsterdam avenue. The runner-up was Betty Styron, 11, of the low seventh grade of O'Keefe Junior High school, who spelled incorrectly the word "pomegranate." She lives at 828 Virginia circle, N. E.

Others who competed in the private and parochial system competition were Jessie Strickland and Jane Bailey, of Washington Seminary; Virginia Dixon, of North Avenue Presbyterian school; Rosemary Harbin, of Eileen Anthony, of Sacred Heart school, and William Penn White, of Marietta College.

Dr. H. H. Bixler, director of research and guidance of Atlanta's schools and who will serve as the word expert in the State Final, was in charge of the public school competition.

Officials besides Miss Askew in the private system competition were the Rev. Father P. H. Dagneau, of Marietta; Miss Bessie Sharp, of North Avenue; Sister Annie Marie, of Sacred Heart, and Mrs. C. G. Morenus.

Atlanta selected two city champions in The Constitution-National Spelling Bee yesterday, but everything was entirely okay.

There wasn't any overlap. They represented different school systems.

BISHOPS DISAGREE ON UNIFICATION

Cannon Denies That Address Is 'Tantamount to Recommendation.'

the pending plan of union be approved by this general conference," and which Bishop Cannon arose to assert did not "indicate the attitude of the bishops" on unification.

Point of Order.

"We deny there is any recommendation on unification," Bishop Cannon said.

Judge Nathan Newby, of Los Angeles, then raised a point of order against the "inclusion of the remarks of Bishops Denny and Candler" in the Episcopal address.

"I know of no law by which two retired bishops can register a protest of this sort," he said. Bishop John M. Moore, presiding at the opening session as senior bishop, declined to allow further argument.

In an expression on liquor that mentioned the President of the United States, the college of bishops said today "the administration that stabbed the temperance movement of a century is doing nothing to curb the beast that it let loose upon the land."

Legal sale of alcoholic beverages was listed in the Episcopal address to the quadrennial conference of the church, as the "heaviest drag upon American business."

The Soviet Union reports that cotton production has doubled in the years of the second five-year plan.

MINTON BILL ASKS FALSIFYING NEWS BE MADE PENALTY

Fine or Prison Is Provided For Publisher Knowingly Printing Lies.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) A proposal that publishers be fined or imprisoned for publishing "as fact anything known to be false" came today from Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana.

Minton, chairman of the senate lobby committee and an administration supporter, offered a bill to make such publication a felony. Upon conviction, publishers could be fined $1,000 to $10,000 and imprisoned for not more than two years. Minton referred to an American Newspaper Publishers' Association committee report which he asserted urged a curb on "misuse" of radio for political purposes. His legislation, he added, would add newspapers in "cleaning up their own house before they start cleaning up the radio."

"They don't want you to speak the truth over the radio," he shouted, "because the radio gives the lie to the propaganda that appears in the sheets of this country."

Charges Press Gag.
"The only way that this administration has to get to the people is to take it to the radio."

"You can not get the story into the press; they will not print it. But let anybody make a loose accusation against them (the administration), and the headlines scream with the story."

"It's all right to use the newspapers for any purpose you please," Minton said sarcastically. "We found that out in the last election. But don't use the radio for political purposes, that's wrong and should be curbed." He added:

"The free press doesn't want any encroachment on democracy by the radio; if there is going to be any encroachment on democracy, the free press wants to do it itself."

Minton asserted that publishers "would deny the President the right to sit down before a microphone in his own home and speak to the people of the country about their government."

At one point, the Indiana Democrat quoted a headline: "HOLC Aide Accused of Franking Millions of Letters to Help Friend."

Charges Letters by Burke.
He asserted it was impossible for the Home Owners' Loan Corporation attorney to have franked million of letters, and said he understood Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, had "engaged in sending out a million letters urging opposition to the Wagner labor act."

Commenting on Minton's talk, Burke said:

"Then newspapers will be very well able to take care of themselves so far as any move to limit their functions is concerned. I am convinced that the overwhelming majority of the people feel no sympathy or approval for these attacks on the press."

"Everyone, even those who are leading the hounds against the press, would admit that without an untrammelled press this country could not go forward the way we all want to go."

During Minton's talk, Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, interrupted to suggest that congress should consider legislation to prevent newspapers from owning radio stations.

By preventing consolidation of newspapers and radio, Norris said, the nation would have "at least two mediums for getting the truth."

Text of Bill.
The text of the bill Minton introduced—titled "A bill making it a felony to publish as a fact anything known to be false"—follows:

"Any person, firm, corporation, or association that publishes in the District of Columbia or publishes or causes to be transported in interstate commerce or through the mails any newspaper, magazine or other periodical in which is published as a fact anything known to said publisher or his responsible agent to be false, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $10,000 and shall be imprisoned for not more than two years."

"The judgment in any such case shall be certified by the clerk of the court in which the conviction was obtained to the postmaster general, who shall immediately suspend such periodical from the use of the mails for a period of six months."

DEFIANT NIPPON

News from Moscow adds fuel to the smouldering fires of uncertainty among informed observers of world affairs. It is stated in an official communique from the Soviet government, that Japan has not only refused to meet the Russians halfway in composing a series of disputes between the two nations, but has demanded new concessions in fishery treaties, etc.

Such an attitude by Tokyo comes as a surprise to the world. It had been believed that Japan, faced with much stiffer opposition than she had anticipated in China, would be in a mood to accept any reasonable, face-saving, proposal the Russians might offer. The Soviet was more than reasonable in the proposal it made. Moscow offered five concessions in return for a similar number from Japan and after examination of the concessions in question, it appears indisputable that Japan was offered the best part of the bargain.

Nevertheless Tokyo has refused the offer. And the world wonders why?

It is possible that the Japanese attitude of defiance is a result of the "understanding" between Tokyo and Berlin. The fine hand of Hitler may have something to do with the situation. For, regardless of immediate reaction, it is probable that Russia, thus faced with a continuing menace in the east, will be less apt to intervene on behalf of Czechoslovakia when the time comes that Hitler will attempt to engorge that country—or at least a portion thereof—into the expanding Reich.

On the other hand, Japan may feel that Russia is too concerned with affairs to her west, with the growing threat of German ambition, to allow Russian-Japanese relations to result in war. Thus Tokyo and Berlin may be playing a clever game together, each benefiting by the existence of a threat from the other.

It is an interesting international situation and one which holds the seeds of developments or conflicts which may determine the future course of history for all the world.

ROADSIDE DEVELOPMENT

Nothing so mars the natural beauty of the countryside as slovenly, unkempt highways. In recognition of this fact, the garden clubs of Georgia have undertaken to sponsor a widespread movement for roadside development.

The plan calls for improving the bare, unsightly banks along roads; converting them into graceful, grass-sodded slopes, planting trees, shrubbery and flowers; removing unsightly obstructions, for purposes of safety as well as looks; a reasonable distance from the roads; repairing fences; hauling fallen dead limbs from woodlots and pastures and improving the general appearance of all objects coming within range of the eye as one travels down the highway.

But good ideas, without the necessary action to put them into effect, have very little tangible value. So, the undertaking should challenge the resourcefulness of every garden club in the state. Too much dependence should not be placed upon government financial aid. It should be remembered that the beautiful White Bluff road near Savannah, and others of equal beauty, was the culmination of individual effort and long range planning.

Co-operation of property owners will have to be sought. And, if the movement is to proceed satisfactorily, all the assistance possible by local representatives of the state highway department will be necessary.

Once the plan gets into full swing the appearance of the roads will begin to show a decided improvement. It is understood that every garden club is to conduct a roadside development campaign, to get the plan moving on the necessary long range basis. There is little doubt of its success measured by past accomplishments of the garden clubs of Georgia.

While a western court was pronouncing sentence, the judicial chair collapsed beneath his honor. One of those snap judgments, it appears.

In a century, the state department has accumulated 300 tons of history. This is the straight stuff, exclusive of all 1,000-page novels on the War Between the States.

With one end of the Rome-Berlin axis turning toward Berlin and the other traveling east, the strain on the differential is something terrific.

Trench systems are to be dug in English parks and picnic spots. These are in case of air raids or finding no other place to drop the olive bottle.

Not all is smooth going among the Fascists.

The Rome-Berlin machine is down with a sprained axle, and, all over the east, Japan finds "road closed" signs.

ATLANTA FALLING BEHIND

Atlanta's drive for traffic safety apparently has bogged down tragically while the remainder of the nation makes steady gains in the same fight. Totals for the nation show an 18 per cent reduction in traffic deaths for the first three months of 1938, and 22 per cent for the month of March.

Atlanta, however, has dropped from the position of a leader in the safety campaign to 23rd place in the ranks of cities of comparable size. Twenty-one deaths were recorded in the first three months of this year as compared with 11 for a similar period in 1937. In March an even greater disparity is shown, with eight deaths compared to one for 1937.

This despite the partial installation of a traffic safety system and stricter enforcement of regulations. Traffic deaths in Georgia decreased, yet in the city increased. It is possible this may be the result of unusual conditions, and the rate for the remainder of the year will run lower than that of last year. Yet, on the surface this does not appear to be true and a re-examination of the situation becomes a necessity.

The fault may lie in the fact that the city has only partially carried out the recommendations of highway traffic experts. It may lie in disregard of the safety of others on the part of a small segment of the city's population.

Whatever the cause, a quick study of the situation is required, with necessary steps taken to insure a return to the lower rate shown through 1937. The rest of the nation demonstrates that an increase in the death rate is a matter of negligence.

THIRD PARTY MOVEMENT

The La Follette, of Wisconsin, have definitely broken relations with the New Deal. So, once again the so-called "progressive movement," as a cure for all evil, is to be spread as generously as possible over the political area of 48 states. But the coating, in all probability, will be rather thin.

The rupture with the New Deal was not surprising. The history of the party is a succession of ruptures. Too weak to wield a great deal of political influence alone, alliances with stronger parties have been continued only as long as there appeared to be an advantage in them. Six years with the New Deal is a record.

The elder La Follette, a Republican, broke with his own party and became affiliated with the Democrats under Woodrow Wilson. The alliance soon ended over differences of opinion as to domestic and war policies. It was then that he began laying the foundation for the present movement, carried on by his sons, at his death.

A third party movement, embracing dissatisfied liberals, farmer-laborites and progressives, is likely to prove of very little importance nationally. In the south the Progressive party is a name only. In the west they have all been swallowed by the New Deal. With all patronage withdrawn and thrown to rival Democratic candidates, success for the party ticket is very remote.

Furthermore, the old La Follette followers, who have become accustomed to patronage, will think long before cutting loose from present affiliations. Without this well-known form of political equipment, which they have controlled during the past five or six years, the sledding will undoubtedly be rough for the party, even in Wisconsin. They will be in the same boat with the Republicans.

The alliance with the Farmer-Labor party is of doubtful value. This party itself is the child of an unnatural alliance. There is no affinity between the farmer and labor. The farmer is an employer. He is of the business class. His relation to labor is similar to any other businessman. They can co-operate to the mutual advantage of each other in many ways, but politically their outlook is not the same. This unit in the third party structure will probably prove to be nothing more than a weak prop.

Losses at the ballot box as a result of the movement will doubtless fall more heavily against the Democrats than the Republicans. But the loss will hardly be felt, certainly not beyond the borders of Wisconsin and perhaps in a few adjacent states.

Actor Dick Powell wants to get away from that stereotyped song and dance role, and just as Uncle Sam is enlarging the fleet. It smacks of ingratitude.

Tokyo hands us a check for two million or so in settlement of the Panay claim. If cashed quickly, it won't matter if it was written in that treaty ink.

Editorial of the Day

(From The Chicago Daily Tribune.)

The introduction of the profit system for the benefit of convicts in British prisons has resulted, according to the report of the directors, in a remarkable improvement in disposition, discipline, and general conduct. It is found that behavior is better, health is improved, that there are fewer complaints of physical ailments, and the men are in better spirits. "There is a general air of interest," says the report, "and a liveliness which no one can remember before."

The convicts aren't earning much, but they are on a scale of weekly payments for their work. The men in the skilled trades obtain higher pay and the prison authorities found that a number of prisoners who had not been known to have skill in a trade now reveal that they have. With a weekly pay, no matter how small, the individual has been put partly on his own and he may make purchases at the canteen, buying tobacco and other articles for small comforts and gratifications.

Not even the prison could take out of the individuals their innate desire to have the moral luxury of partly supporting themselves, of doing work which paid them, and of bettering their condition by their own efforts. Unless a system of government has beaten that instinct out of people it is the most valuable social force there is. Opportunity and ability to better a condition of life by gainful work combine to make the most important influence society.

Apparently the British experiment proves that even among social misfits, and within walls and under severe discipline, the profit motive will produce a regeneration where other methods fail. The men were given something, however little, to work for and to live for, and they responded, according to report, in a remarkable fashion to this simple, new incentive.

AMERICA SPEAKS

La Follette Third Party Movement Seen Facing an Unreceptive Public; Survey Finds Voters Are Satisfied With Present Parties.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, April 28.—If a national third party springs out of the public meeting which the La Follette brothers held in Wisconsin last night, it will face serious obstacles in "selling" itself to the voters. And if such a party were actually started it would constitute a greater threat to the Democrats than it would to the Republicans.

These facts are revealed in studies of public opinion conducted during the last few weeks by the American Institute.

As everyone knows, a successful third party movement requires its impetus from public dissatisfaction with existing party lines. But Institute surveys show that there is little or no inclination among either Republicans or Democrats to favor new party alignments at the present time.

MAJORITY OF VOTERS SATISFIED WITH PARTIES
Seven out of every 10 voters in both parties say they are satisfied with the existing Republican-Democratic division, believing apparently that these parties are adequate vehicles for the expression of opinion differences.

Recently the Institute asked, in a nation-wide survey: "Do you think the time has come to give up our two present political parties and have two new ones: one for Conservatives, the other for Liberals?"

As the following table shows, the vote was an overwhelming "no."

National	Yes	No
Republicans	30%	70%
Democrats	26%	74%
Party would draw from the Democrats	30%	70%

From the replies to a second question in the survey it is clear that a new third party would draw only a handful of Republican voters. Its principal support would come from the New Deal wing of the Democratic party, especially in the lower income groups.

The question was:

"If there were only two political parties, one for Conservatives and one for Liberals, which party do you think you would like to join?"

The conservative-liberal split among Republicans and Democrats was sharp and dramatic. Nearly all Republicans said they would identify themselves with the conservative party, where as the large majority of Democrats would take up with the liberal party. It is from the latter group that a new liberal coalition might draw votes today, particularly if southern conservative leaders of the present Democratic party gain in power over party affairs.

The survey results follow:

Favor Conservative Liberal Party	85%
Favor Democratic Party	15%

FARMER AND LABORERS DIFFER RADICALLY

Observers have for many years been talking about the possibility of a new party based on the farmer-labor vote. In Oklahoma last week Mayor La Guardia, of New York, predicted a realignment of parties with conservatives and businessmen on one side, and "farmers, laboring men and progressives" on the other.

Institute studies have found, however, that the opinions of the farmer and working man differ so radically on many basic issues that a Farmer-Labor party would have serious difficulty in attracting a substantial following of voters.

Individuals, are probably to be envious.

But for me—I dislike the disruptive effect of such presences upon the serene, contemplative calm of the daily ride to town.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, April 28, 1913:

At the annual meeting of the Virginia, was unanimously elected president of the Southern Sociological Congress at its general session in Wesley Memorial church last night."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Sunday, April 29, 1888:

The reception to President Cleveland at the Capital City Club Cost $5,860. This is a steep figure for one night's entertainment. But it was gorgeous. Of this outlay, $1,400 worth remains in permanent improvement. The net cost of that eventful night to the club was $4,460. This looks as if we were traveling along right sharply."

GOOD MORNING

THE COUNTRY CHURCH.

The Constitution carried an editorial last Tuesday, titled, "The Passing of the Country Church." I hope you read that editorial. It was a fine statement, indicating the deep appreciation in which the editor of The Commercial Appeal regards the country church, and I am grateful that the editorial questions the sweeping statement that the country church is really passing.

I don't believe for a minute that the country church is passing. Like everything else, the country church is passing through changing times, but that doesn't prove at all that the country church is itself passing. People who are looking for discouraging signs can point out country churches that are having a hard pull. They might be able to point out some other institutions that are having a hard pull.

But these calamity howlers do not tell you about the great majority of country churches that are today stronger than they ever were. That is why I don't let these "down-in-the-mouth" folks get on my nerves. I find that most of them either know nothing about country churches, or are doing nothing to help the situation.

"The country church and the country school are written large upon the progress of American civilization," wrote the editor of The Commercial Appeal, quoted in Tuesday's Constitution. Correct. And they will continue to render a very large service. They are the source of supply for our city churches and our city schools and everything else worthwhile in the cities.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

HARDING SARASOTA, Fla., April 28.—There

Lieutenant was a gentle, kind old man stopping at the inn on the shore of the Gulf of Mexico a few days ago who somehow looked familiar and turned out to be Harry Daugherty, the attorney general and tough guy of the Warren G. Harding presidency. Time has changed Mr. Daugherty. He is 78 years old now and softened up by the blows of personal and political tragedy. His wife died after 28 years of invalidism; his son, Draper, the pride and hope of his younger days, died some years ago, and of course the smash and scandal of the Harding administration left scars even on the cast iron hide of a man who was more furiously hated by more personal enemies, I suppose, than any other American since Abraham Lincoln.

I once was assigned to follow Mr. Daugherty to Miami and wherever else he might go at a time when there was some thought that he might jump the country and hole up in some banana port to avoid examination as a witness in certain phases of the Ohio regime in Washington.

Knowing that Mr. Daugherty was very sick, and wanting not to be a nuisance, I proposed to him after several days' surveillance that we make a deal. I was to let him alone and he promised to tell me in good time when he was leaving and where he was going. A week later he telephoned that he was going back to Washington that night, and that was all there was to it.

But the old man chuckled the other night as we sat in a dark room on the front porch at the thought of a reporter trailing an attorney general of the United States who had William J. Burns and his department fly cops doing the same to many worthy citizens. He had J. Edgar Hoover, too.

Daugherty Rests Mr. Daugherty has been

'On the Shelf' blind for one eye and deaf in one ear for many years, and now his good eye and ear are none too good, but good enough, at that, says he, to see and hear the little good that there is in the world. He lives almost altogether in the past now, in the company of men who have died since the Ohio crowd went whooping into Washington with prohibition and Wayne Wheeler.

In his time he ripped and slashed for power and came on to be the personal boss of a President of the United States, so it was a little comic that night when the woman with the little boy planned to go to the movies and the old-time tyrant told her to run right along and not worry for he, Harry Daugherty, personally would sit up in the rocker in the dark at the foot of the little boy's bed and watch over him.

News Man Next day Karl Bickel came over—

Retires Bickel, the ex-president of the United Press, who batted around the world for years and years and clawed his way to the top in tough competition, said when suddenly he retired to a drowsy, sunny little town 'way down the Florida gulf coast and putter in little interests such as the Cabana Club and Don Halton's free clinic for the sorrowful children of the pure Anglo-Saxon backwoods Crackers.

It cost $5 overhead to detach a Cracker child from his or her adenoids and tonsils and free the patient of hookworm, and the doctor, whose services are tossed in free, is now working on his last batch in the entire county, a group of 20.

Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Bickel sometimes sat in the sun, two retired guys who were fierce and fast in action so short a time ago, talking like Noah and the hero of the Johnstown flood, of times gone past. And there was a man in the placid little community who went about leading a soft-eyed gentle old greyhound on a leash.

"Nice dog you have there," Mr. Bickel said. "Is he a racing dog?"

"He was," the man said. "He was a racing dog. His name is Smiles. He was a very good, fast dog, but one night he caught the rabbit. After that they lost interest. They discovered that the thing they have been chasing so hard is just a phoney, and they just lie down in the box and watch the other dogs run, like saying, 'Go ahead and run yourselves ragged for a mess of hair and sawdust!'"

Both Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Bickel took a liking to Smiles, and he would stretch out in some shady spot, sigh deeply and go to sleep.

If a Rich Soil Quits Bearing Good Crops, the Farmer Suspects The New Seed

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The mythical man in the street, who earns his living and supports a family and qualifies as a good citizen, does not pretend to be an economic expert nor profess to understand the new theories of government.

But he knows certain things that greater men seem to have forgotten. He knows that the people of America, blessed with freedom and self-reliance and a keen ambition to get ahead, somehow contrived to make this country so great and rich that in many ways it was equal to all other lands combined.

He knows, for he has often seen the statistics, that Americans normally have more purchasing power than all of Europe's 500 million.

He knows that America normally produces over 60 per cent of the world's cotton and wheat, 50 per cent of its copper and iron, 40 per cent of its coal and lead, and 70 per cent of its crude oil.

He knows that America has 80 per cent of the world's automobiles, 60 per cent of its telephones, about 90 per cent of its bathtubs, and one-third of all its railway equipment.

He knows that America is normally so rich that it is able to buy and consume 72 per cent of the world's silk, 60 per cent of its gasoline and oil, 56 per cent of its rubber, 53 per cent of its tin, 47 per cent of its copper, 42 per cent of its iron, almost one-fourth of its sugar and almost half of its coffee.

He knows that any system which could develop such an incredible prosperity must be fundamentally sound.

He knows that the waste of mankind's accumulated wealth in the World War, followed by a world-wide orgy of paper speculation, led to an economic collapse and depression that crippled America with the rest.

He knows that Canada, just across an imaginary line, though possessed of only a fraction of America's advantages, led the way in recovery, that other great nations, though hurt much worse and much less able to bear it, somehow achieved a relative recovery long ago.

And he knows that America, despite its enormous wealth and despite the spending of over $20,000,000,000 to create an artificial prosperity, still has 10,000,000 idle men, an ever-increasing debt despite the increasing taxes, and no plan or hope for relief except the borrowing and spending of more public money.

He doesn't know what is wrong, but he does know that such a paradox of wealth and failure doesn't make sense. When a good machine stops working, somebody has thrown a monkey wrench in it.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"To love the high embowered roof With antique pillars, masonry proof, And storied windows, richly, light, Casting a dim religious light."

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are" runs the breakfast food legend. But of a whole people it may more correctly be said, "Show me the buildings you live and work in, and I'll show you what you are."

Listen to Frank Lloyd Wright, philosopher of modern architecture: "The future for architecture depends upon a new sense of reality, a different success idea, a deeper social consciousness, a finer integrity of the individual."

Through all the ages and their spiritual and social ups and downs, the architecture of mortals has reflected their ways and days, and it is reasonable, therefore, to think that better ways and days now will produce better architecture. But we hope the philosophers will find something to say for the reverse influence, the influence of architecture upon ways and days.

In other words, it seems to us that the places in which people live and work and play influence their lives easily as much as they reflect them. Architects are no mere agents of civilization. They are, in a very important degree, civilization's makers—for better or worse.

And, in our humble opinion, they are doing wonderfully well at the job. Better than another group of artists, the modern musicians. Insofar as the excesses of jazz and swing our musicians have let us in for are a reflection of what we moderns are, we need to be ashamed of ourselves.

But insofar as the excesses themselves are influencing us to be more raucous, nerve-ridden and monotonous than we were before, it is the musicians who need to be ashamed.

Others will find something to say for the reverse influence, the influence of architecture upon ways and days.

It is too early to say who will win the war. But that Japan has bitten off more than she can chew is now patent to all. Her economic system is groaning under the strain. Her economic system cannot stand the gaff for another year, that is why there must be now a quick decision, a rapid victory. A giant with feet of clay, that is Japan.

Outcome Uncertain.

No, it is too early to say who will come out on top. Japan is massing her best troops now in the occupied parts of China to deliver a new blow. The Chinese can probably not parry that blow. They have little war material, at least not of the perfection of that of Japan at its disposal. China can only maneuver and try to exhaust Japan, follow the Russian Czar's example in luring Napoleon to perdition. Nobody can foretell whether China will succeed. But it does not take a strategist to see that any other great power could check, wallow and bring the Japanese Empire to its knees in no time. An overrated idol staggering on its feet under the blow of peasant armies.

Truth Is Concealed.

The newspapers in Tokyo and Yokohama and the other great cities of Nippon are keeping knowledge of the extent of the disaster from the people. Soldiers coming home on sick leave or furlough have been sworn to secrecy and the deepest spirit of gloom pervades the land, dispatches inform us. For the people are aware of what is going on. They know that it is true—what American military experts describe as "the bubble of Japanese superiority has been pricked by Chinese bayonets."

It is too early to say who will win the war. But that Japan has bitten off more than she can chew is now patent to all. Her economic system is groaning under the strain. Her economic system cannot stand the gaff for another year, that is why there must be now a quick decision, a rapid victory. A giant with feet of clay, that is Japan.

Hitler Invests Salute To Viennese With Pompous Drama.

By RALPH MCGILL
Article No. 2.

VIENNA, Austria, (By Mail).—At noon on Saturday, April 9, there came the most dramatic moment of the entire show before the plebs which wiped out Austria, even its name.

Hitler, Adolf Hitler, "Der Fuehrer" of 75,000,000 people, had arrived in Vienna and gone to the old palace, now the Rathaus, or city hall, to await the ceremony. I stood with the crowd, not far from the Rathaus, to watch. On the stroke of 11 there came the voice from the loudspeakers proclaiming that the hour was at hand. The vote was not until the next day but here was Joseph Goebbels proclaiming the new Reich.

There were two minutes of silence. I saw, and heard, that great crowd grow silent. Not a thing stirred. There was not a sound. A nation had grown silent. Trains stopped in all the German nation. In every railway and hamlet and dale and hill all motion stopped. 200,000 STAND IN SILENCE.

From where I stood, on the base of a newly erected pylon, I could see at least 200,000 people. They stood in silence with arms upraised in the Fascist salute. The holy reunion of German blood was announced as completed. Then there was silence for a moment until the two minutes were done.

Arms came down, and from the massed thousands came the great shout, "Sieg Heil!" And then, "Heil Hitler! Ein Volk, ein Reich, ein Fuehrer." It was done.

Then there was a roaring in the skies. Neck craned. Out of the borders of clouds across toward the Cobenzl hill, where Maria Theresa's great chancellor once lived, there came the great black bombing planes of Germany—26 of them roaring over in a tremendous swirling salute—and a warning.

After them came more huge black transport planes, from the open doors of which there poured such loosened bales of propaganda that the sky actually was darkened.

They all—each sheet—carried the one word, "Ja." But now, the crowd was straining necks again. Soldiers came. The triple lines of young men and soldiers locked arms. "Der Fuehrer" was coming.

NAME OF AUSTRIA OFFICIALLY ABOLISHED

There were new graves because of his coming. Some 200,000 people, cultured people who had contributed much to the history of Austria, sat at home in terror; there were thousands there who had fear in their hearts and who did not care to see themselves bereft of their country and a part of Germany, the "Oestmark" or the German Reich.

The name Austria was officially abolished. But they said no word. Perhaps they never will. But most assuredly had anyone that day said a word of criticism or made a threatening move, he or she would have been torn to bits, very little bits, by that hysterical, fanatical throng.

He was coming. Down the street, in which drooped the red flags with their black hooked crosses, came the procession. He stood in his car. He did not smile. He saluted.

Here again I unbutton the cover of the camera case. Here again hands grabbed the camera and two men in plain clothes hustled your reporter to one side, while the hostile crowd pressed around.

Again the leather case contained only a camera. Again the passport was investigated. ORDERED TO MAKE NO MORE PICTURES.

TEXAS POET NAMED AMERICAN MOTHER

Mrs. Grace Crowell to Reign for One Year.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—Victor in a nation-wide round of nominations, Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell, of Dallas, Texas, poet laureate of Texas and mother of three grown sons, was named today as "the American mother of 1938."

Her one-year reign starts on Mother's Day, May 8.

Mrs. Crowell's three children are: Dean H. Crowell, 34, bank clerk; Reid Crowell, 26, artist, and Norton B. Crowell, 24, an instructor at Southern Methodist University.

She is a native of Inland, Iowa, and was educated in high school at Wilton, Iowa, and at German College, Wilton. She married Norman H. Crowell, of Dallas, in 1901.

JOBLESS DECREASE 142,000 IN MARCH

Board Finds.

NEW YORK, April 28.—(P)—The National Industrial Conference Board reported today that its estimates showed a slight decrease in unemployment between February and March, making the total of unemployed in March 10,408,000.

The board's estimates showed a decline of 142,000 in the ranks of unemployed in March, for the revised February figures, due primarily to the increase in agriculture and construction activity, which more than compensated for declines in employment in manufacturing, mining, transportation, utilities and the service industries.

All feet seemed to lead toward the Imperial hotel, where the god of the German nation was resting in Vienna. Within an hour and a half I had worked my way to a place in front of the hotel. People were allowed in only a narrow space in front of it, and not at all in the rear or on its sides. There none could come closer than within a block.

But in front of it, that "mastermind" Joe Goebbels, had arranged for many police and soldiers and for secret service men and for a place where the people might pass. It was 50 yards distant from the balcony.

The wanted them there. They wanted them to come and shout. They did. They massed there. It required one hour to worm through it the distance of a half block. And there was a wait. The crowd shouted:

"We would our leader see. We would our leader see."

Then it died away. Then it flamed up, almost instantly, into: "Ein Volk, ein Reich, ein Fuehrer."

They chanted it. They howled it. Then they "heiled."

"Sieg Heil! Sieg Heil! Sieg Heil!"

WORLD WAR CHILDREN
GROWN TO MANHOOD

For an hour we stood there. The snow came again and it was bitter cold. I looked. I tried counting. I counted only a few in the thousands about me who looked if they were more than four to six years old when the great war of 1914 flamed.

Germany and Austria had known hunger and unemployment and sickness and much poverty since the war. Those who had come to thinking since the end of the war had known nothing stable but this grim ex-soldier, Adolf Hitler, with his great desire to dominate the world through a united Germanic people.

Those people have turned to him. Do not think Austria did not want him. Perhaps 40 per cent of the people did not. But the others did.

Many of the Nazis who had made the revolution did not like what had happened. They had expected to be left with their own nation, Austria, and to have it merely as an independent state of Germany. They had expected to fill its jobs. But they came, even to the telephone and telegraph operators, from Germany. They had been taken in. There was nothing to do but like it. They did. The jobs will come later.

So, we waited. They sang that song.

They believe it. ONLY SALUTES COME FROM HITLER

At last there was a movement at one of the doors on the balcony. It opened. The crowd sat up a frenzied shout as the man in the brown overcoat stepped out.

He walked to one end of the balcony and saluted. He walked to the center and saluted. He walked to the other end and saluted, and then returned to his room.

The crowd began to break up. I walked back past the Grand hotel, and saw there the soldiers in one of the street level shops and in others along the way.

It was very cold. I turned into a coffee house, sat down in a corner and ordered coffee. The waiter came up and lifted his hand in the Fascist salute:

"Coffee," I said.

Vienna learned quickly. All the shopkeepers greet each customer as he enters and leaves with "Heil Hitler." I sat there stirring my coffee and wondered what the opponents of Mr. Roosevelt, who think him a dictator, would do if they had to say "Heil Roosevelt!" every time they purchased a collar or a pack of cigarettes.

I went on back to the hotel and to the desk for the key.

"Heil Hitler," said the porter. "Zwei und Zwanzig." I said in that inimitable German which used to be the despair of Dr. George Pullen Jackson at Vanderbilt University.

I went up to the room. My bag had been looked into. I had left it unlocked so it could be done easily. There was just time to lie down and get rested and warmed before going out to eat and to hear the speech.

(Tomorrow Mr. McGill will discuss another phase of the situation in Vienna.)

Party Functionary Declares
On Visit Here They Can Better Conditions.

In this day a woman's place is in the political arena as well as the home, according to a young North Carolina wife who holds a key position with the national Democratic party.

She is Mrs. Mary Thompson Evans, now of Washington, assistant director of the women's division of the national Democratic committee, who was here last night for an unofficial visit to the headquarters of the Fulton County Democratic Women's Club.

27,000,000 "Children." Mrs. Evans, small and fired with enthusiasm for the work she is doing, has no children of her own but says she has "27,000,000 Democrats to look after and the family is growing all the time."

Mrs. Evans thinks that there should be at least one woman cabinet member in each administration. She said that the record of Madame Frances Perkins, of the Department of Labor, has built a record of facts which have been invaluable in determining conditions in her department.

"Women are realizing the situation before them and are going to do something about it," she said, "and I believe that the woman's vote will be a large factor in the 1940 election because women are turning their attention to issues at stake and they will vote in accordance with their belief," she said.

Mrs. Evans is the first woman to be elected president of a state organization of young Democrats in TAXES ON FOOTBALL DEFENDED BY U. S.

Game Is Not Necessary to Georgia Education, Attorney Contends.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(P)—A government lawyer argued today before the supreme court that it was not necessary for state universities to include intercollegiate football on their educational programs.

This contention was made by J. Louis Monarch, special assistant to the attorney general, in defending a federal admission tax on athletic events at state universities.

Directly at issue was whether such a tax could be imposed on tickets sold to football games at the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech.

The fifth circuit court of appeals declared that the assessment would be an unconstitutional burden on a state instrumentality.

Monarch asserted "intercollegiate football is a gigantic spectacle surrounded by glamor which takes it completely away from the ordinary conception of carrying out a governmental function."

"This walk business," said Inspector Boyce, "I don't know if you've got it clear, Colonel Anstruther. It's a tunnel with the rose garden on either side of it, say 50 yards, with a seat and a window at the end, and a cross-piece, say 20 yards, on either side, with an exit at both ends. Lady Colesborough went in down the main walk and came out on the right-hand side. Miss Hardwicke came in by the main walk and out the same way. Mr. Somers came in by the main walk. It was him running in that Lady Colesborough heard. And he says he went out by the exit on the left-hand side and round outside the hedge to make sure of Sir Francis being dead. Then he says, he came back to Miss Hardwicke and they both returned by the main walk to the house, meeting the butler on the way. Mr. Somers then telephoned the police. You've got their statements there."

Inspector Boyce coughed.

"Mr. Somers says he drove Miss Hardwicke down because she asked him to. He says he had never heard of Mr. Zero, but, as one of Mr. Montagu Lushington's secretaries, he was naturally aware that an important document had been stolen. He did not in any way connect the journey to Cole Lester with the stolen document."

"Miss Hardwicke says Lady Colesborough had confided in her that she was being blackmailed by some one she called Mr. Zero. She asked Mr. Somers to drive her down to Cole Lester because she knew that Lady Colesborough was to meet this man at the window in the yew hedge between 12 and 1 o'clock that night in order to hand over to him a package of letters which she had taken from Sir Francis' private safe. She hoped by being present as a witness to frighten the blackmailer and induce him to leave Lady Colesborough alone. In my opinion Miss Hardwicke is telling the truth. If you'll turn to her statement, sir, I believe you will agree it is convincing."

Colonel Anstruther took up a paper and began to read aloud: "I had just got into the tunnel and begun to grope my way along it. I had a torch, but I did not want to use it, so I was going slowly. I thought I ought to be able to see the window. All at once I did see it, because there was a flash of light on the other side of the hedge. And I heard someone calling out. There was a lot of noise. I can't say whether there were two people shouting or only one. It was just a sudden noise which I wasn't expecting. I didn't hear any words, only this noise, and then a shot. After the shot I heard my cousin scream. I ran towards the window, and when I got to the seat I remembered my torch and turned it on. Lady Colesborough was standing there with the pistol in her hand. I saw the pistol drop. I looked out of the window and saw Sir Francis lying on the grass. He was about three yards away from the window. I thought he was dead. I heard someone running towards me down the tunnel. I picked up the pistol and wiped it on my dress. Mr. Somers came—"

"Wiped the pistol, did she?" Colonel Anstruther rapped out. "Any finger-marks left?"

"Nothing to speak of, sir. She'd held it in a bit of her dress and wiped it as well as she could. It's a terrible pity. We'd have known for certain whether this Zero was really there if she hadn't, and if we'd got a good print we might have roped him in."

"If you had wings you might fly!" growled Colonel Anstruther. "Lord, man—what sort of prints do you think you'd have got? If Lady Colesborough is telling the truth, there were four of them who handled it—Colesborough, Zero, herself, and Miss Hardwicke. You'd have been lucky to have got one straight print."

"We need a bit of luck," said Inspector Boyce.

"Well, let's see if Lady Colesborough can supply it," snapped Colonel Anstruther. "Ask her to come in."

Sylvia Colesborough sat on one side of a blazing fire on the deep old-fashioned hearth in a leather-covered chair whose rich crimson thrice up the gold-trimmed hair and the pallor of her skin. Colonel Anstruther, who had perforce to occupy the seat on the other side of the fire, was being more painfully reminded every moment of a brief and unpleasant period of service in the tropics. His face was almost as red as the leather of his chair. Even if the temperature had been some 30 degrees cooler, Sylvia's confidences might well have brought him to the verge of apoplexy. With Inspector Boyce sitting at Francis Colesborough's writing table and taking notes, she told the chief constable all about Mr. Zero from the first telephone call.

As he listened to her jumbled story Colonel Anstruther anticipated a difficult time but he began to question her.

"Now, Lady Colesborough, will you tell me this? When did this Mr. Zero give you the instructions about taking the envelope from Mr. Montagu Lushington's dispatch case?"

"Well, it was on the Saturday—Saturday last week—"

"Yes, yes, but what time?" Sylvia looked vague.

"Well, I'd had my tea—and I hadn't started for Wellings—because of course, he couldn't have rung me up if I'd started, could he? So I expect it was about 5," said Sylvia with a sigh.

Inspector Boyce made a note of the time. So did a quiet, non-descript little man with sandy hair who was standing by one of the closed windows. His name was Brook, and he represented the home office, but so unobtrusively that it was difficult to remember that he was there at all. Some times he stared upon the room and its three occupants, sometimes he made a note. He made one now.

Colonel Anstruther blinked.

"And what time was it when you went into Mr. Lushington's room and took the envelope?" Sylvia leaned back again.

"I expect it was about half past seven—or eight—but I don't think it could really have been as late as that, because we were dining at a quarter past eight—because of Francis, you know. He told me to say he was afraid he was going to be late, and he was—we were halfway through the fish, so I expect it was about a quarter to eight really. You see, I waited till I heard the bath water running."

Colonel Anstruther's complexion took on a livelier ruby.

"Bath water? Whose bath water?"

"Mr. Lushington's."

Colonel Anstruther failed to repress a snort. He said in a military voice, "Lushington, madam—Lushington."

After an interval he proceeded. "You say that you never saw Mr. Zero."

"Oh, no. You see, it was always on the telephone or in the days I talked with him."

"When you handed over the envelope which you had taken from Mr. Lushington—Lady Colesborough, you say it was dark and you did not see his face, but he took the envelope from you. Did you see his hand?"

"He had a glove on his hand," said Sylvia, unexpectedly lucid.

"What kind of a glove?"

"Oh, just a glove—the sort men wear."

"Did you notice at what height the hand was?"

Sylvia looked blank.

"Don't you see, Lady Colesborough, that if the man was tall, the hand which he put out to take the envelope would have been at a higher level than if he had been short? Come over here, Boyce, for a minute." He turned his head. "And, Mr. Brook—if you would be so good—"

"Now," said Colonel Anstruther, "if you will each put out a hand, Lady Colesborough will be able to see what I mean."

Sylvia gazed earnestly, first at the tall inspector, and then at Mr. Brook.

She said in a horrified voice, "Do you mean that one of them is Mr. Zero?"

Inspector Boyce very nearly discolored himself. His face stiffened and assumed strange tints. Mr. Brook remained unmoved. Colonel Anstruther said in the tone of a man who prays for patience, "Certainly not. I wish you to observe the difference in the height at which they are extending their hands. Cast your mind back to the drive at Wellings. You gave that envelope to a man who put out his hand to receive it. Look at the inspector, look at Mr. Brook. Try and remember whether Mr. Zero's hand was as high as the inspector's or as low as Mr. Brook's."

Sylvia looked, and said, "I don't know. But I'm sure he was tall."

"Why?"

"Because he was—I mean, I always thought of him that way—at least I don't know—I did then, but not afterwards."

"Excuse me, Colonel Anstruther," said Mr. Brook.

Colonel Anstruther nodded a "That'll do, Boyce," and the inspector went back to his notes.

Mr. Brook brought up a small hard chair and sat down.

"Now, Lady Colesborough," he said in a soft, pleasant voice, "I want just to ask you one or two questions."

"I'm so tired of them," said Sylvia.

"I'm sure you are, but I just wondered what you meant when you said that at first you thought Mr. Zero was tall but not afterwards."

Sylvia looked blank. "I don't know—I just thought he was."

BIG ELECTRIC SIGNS.

During my first visit to New York city, when I was 16 years of age, I looked with great interest at Broadway at night. Lining the streets on both sides were electric signs, the largest and brightest I ever had seen.

Some signs had motion in them, or at least seemed to have it. I remember a sign which advertised a certain kind of silk thread. It displayed a sewing machine at work, and showed a cat which jumped on the machine, tried to get hold of the thread, then jumped down again.

There were 20,000 electric bulbs in it! Many of the bulbs were made of colored glass. To show the motion, 2,500 bulbs were flashed on and off each minute.

Above the sign was a line reading "Leaders of the World," and below this flashed the names of various firms in letters four feet high. The leading chariot had a wheel eight feet in diameter—the other wheel wasn't in view.

After the chariot race sign was taken down, an even larger electric sign appeared on Broadway. It was 250 feet wide and 50 feet high. There were fountains 40 feet long, peacocks with tails 80 feet long, and figures throwing lances.

The monthly cost of this sign was given as $9,000. The figure includes money spent keeping the sign in repair as well as the cost of the electric current.

Nowadays most large cities have electric signs of one kind or another. Some streets in London are quite bright with them, the brightest place of all being Piccadilly Circus. The electric signs of Piccadilly Circus give such a good (and free) show that some persons in London have called it "The Scotsman's Cinema."

Large Electric Sign in London.

Of course the lights stay in the same place. The seeming motion comes from the fact they are switched on and off in different parts of the sign.

Another Broadway sign showed an ancient Roman chariot race. Six galloping steeds were pulling three chariots. The garments of the drivers seemed to be fluttering in the breeze, and all in all it was a pretty good race—except that one chariot always stayed in the lead.

Although that sign has not been shown for many years, I have the figures for it. It was 80 feet wide and 72 feet high, and invaders' power was spent.Japanese columns driving south from Shantung province were within 10 miles of Yunho and Sin-an, points on the railway 40 and 68 miles, respectively, east of Suchow, junction point of the Lunghai and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad.Chinese fought desperately against the invaders driving south toward the Lunghai railway, but the Japanese, though slowed down, advanced three miles in 24 hours. Then, with the fury of the attack spent, the Chinese high command said its forces counter-attacked and broke the enemy

Containing Enough for All.The arrival of a truck load of food—including a birthday cake—ended the "worry" of Judge Marcus W. Beck yesterday and featured a surprise party marking the retired jurist's 78th birthday anniversary.The party began when members of the Ten Club gathered at the judge's home on Stratford road. As they arrived, one by one, Judge Beck, who served 32 consecutive years as associate justice of the Georgia supreme court, became more and more disturbed.
"There's nothing much for you to eat here," said the judge, who was spending the day quietly at home."Don't worry about that," reassured his guests. "We'll tend to the food."When the truck arrived, tables were set under the trees behind the Beck home. Guests included men prominent in all phases of Atlanta life.

Judge Beck, who is well known throughout the south, said he "felt as well as ever" and that he was "trying to forget birthdays."The jurist was born in Harrisburg April 28, 1860, and first practiced law in Jackson, Ga. He served in various state offices prior to becoming a major in the Spanish-American War. Following the conflict, he established offices in Griffin, where he practiced law until his appointment to the bench by Governor Joseph Terrell.He has been retired since Sep-

Grace Atlanta Movies This WeekGrand and Rialto Retain Hits While "Mad About Music" Moves to Georgia; "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" at Fox, and Kay Francis, Paramount, Open Today.By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.Atlanta theatergoers get more of the same this week.They crowded the Grand, Rialto and Fox last week until the managers decided to hold over their features.Supplementing this double helping of "Test Pilot," "There's Always a Woman," and "Mad About Music"—which has been moved from the Fox to the Georgia—two new shows open today and another Sunday."Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," a madcap comedy in a continental European setting, opens today at the Fox theater starring Gary Cooper and Claudette Colbert. The Paramount brings Kay Francis teamed with Pat O'Brien in "Women Are Like That." Opening Sunday, the Capitol will offer "Island in the Sky," with Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen.As for the midnight shows tomorrow, the Grand is bringing back Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy's "Maytime" while the Fox is showing a preview of "College Swing," which stars
Burns and Allen, Edward Everett Horton and Martha Raye. Both shows begin at 11:30 o'clock.And now for a little about the new shows.

Gary Cooper at Fox.

Gary Cooper is cast in the role of a vacationing American millionaire whose aversion is sleeping in pajama pants. He meets a penitless French aristocrat who refuses to barter her love for wealth, despite the passionate pleas of her father. But, a Mediterranean moon turns the trick and Miss Colbert enters the marriage contract bent on teaching her new husband an unforgettable lesson.Having learned her husband had been married seven times before, Miss Colbert sets out to tame the haughtiness that has made him cast his former wives aside. And first thing he knows, Gary is falling back on Shakespeare's theories.This is the first co-starring picture for Gary and Claudette. And in it they are supported by Edward Everett Horton, David Niven, Warren Hymer and Herman Bing. The picture was directed by Ernest Lubitsch, which means some "choice lines."

Kay Francis at Paramount.

"Women Are Like That," at the Paramount, is another picture presenting two stars in their first co-starring roles. Kay Francis, wearing clothes with a grace all her own, has Pat O'Brien, the genial Irishman, as her leading man this time.The story concerns life, love and marriage in New York's advertising agency set. As the show opens, Ralph Forbes is waiting at the altar for Kay, daughter of the senior partner of his advertisingagency. But at the last moment, Kay has eloped with Pat, the firm's ace ad writer. There are fights in the agency. Pat resigns.
Kay sells an account to help him, but Pat takes it the wrong way—his pride being hurt—and they split up. She becomes a success in the advertising world while he goes around the world on a big drunk. But, things work out.

Capitol Features.

Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen aren't going to let a routine murder case hold up their honeymoon in "Island in the Sky," which opens Sunday at the Capitol. It's another case in which the wife does some sleuthing and changes the entire setup of the evidence. On the stage will be "Hollywood Vanities," a vaudeville revue featuring a cast of 25 persons.Continuing through tomorrow night, Bill Boyd in "Partners of the Plains" and Mickey Daniels, former freckled-faced "Our Gang" comedy star, will share the Cap-itol's featured spots.

The Holdovers.

"Test Pilot" at the Grand stars
Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore in the best aviation picture since "Hell's Divers." It is filled with suspense and these great screen stars turn in a magnificent performance. The story concerns a test pilot's sky, love and ground and the grief he brings. The show is packed with thrills."There's Always a Woman" is the best "Theodore Gers Wild" comedy type since Irene Dunn scored such a hit with "Theodora." Only this time, "There's Always a Woman," with the help of Melvyn Douglas, male star of "Theodora," establishes Joan Blondell as a comedy actress of the finest caliber. The story concerns the mad antics of a detective and his wife, also a detective, as they work on the same case—but from different viewpoints. It's at the Rialto."Mad About Music" is the third of the Deanna Durbin successes.
And the best for entertainment.
The little 15-year-old star thrilled Fox audiences last week and has been moved downtown to the Georgia for another week. She sings classics and popular songs.
Supporting her are Herbert Marshall and Gail Patrick.BRITAIN HARBOURS GERMANS.
LONDON, April 28.—(AP)—Sir
Samuel Hoare, the home secretary, indicated today Britain is harboring some 6,000 German

HOWELL QUALIFIES AS FIRST CANDIDATE IN GOVERNOR'S RACE

Talmadge Is Declared To Have Decided To Enter Primary Against George.

Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney, yesterday formally qualified as a candidate for Governor in the September 14 state-wide primary. Accompanied by Tom Linder, former commissioner of agriculture, Ben Forkner, of Avondale, president of the DeKalb County Hugh Howell-for-Governor-Club, and others, the former Talmadge state chairman filed his entry yesterday afternoon with Charles S. Reid, chairman of the State Democratic executive committee.

Forkner paid the $350 entry fee which, he said, was contributed by members of the DeKalb Club. First To Qualify.

Howell is the first candidate to qualify. Governor Rivers has indicated that he will ask re-election and yesterday the Augusta Chronicle carried a news article asserting that it had established from authoritative sources that Charles D. Redwine, of Fayetteville, one of the two candidates Rivers overwhelmingly defeated in 1936, would make the race again.

The Augusta article also said that former Governor Talmadge had decided to make the race against Senator Walter F. George, who is up for re-election, but at his farm in Telfair county Talmadge said, "It's the first I've heard of it."

Rivers Returns to Capital. Meanwhile Governor Rivers returned to Atlanta from a speaking tour and busied himself with a number of routine state board meetings. Although he has indicated he will seek re-election there has been no inkling as to when he would qualify.

State Chairman Reid also announced yesterday that W. W. Alexander, prominent Thomasville lawyer, had qualified to oppose Judge W. E. Thomas, of the Valdosta circuit. Judge Thomas is expected to seek re-election.

In Atlanta, Chairman Hughes Spalding, of the Fulton county Democratic executive committee, yesterday called a meeting of his group for noon next Tuesday when qualifications and entry fees will be fixed for county candidates.

Extra Fees Permitted. Under the rules of the state committee, the Fulton county group may add extra fees for candidates for places on the superior court. The state committee fixed these fees at $250 but gave committees in large counties the right to levy additional assessments.

Judges John D. Humphries, Virlyn B. Moore and E. E. Pomeroy are up for re-election. Assistant City Attorney Bond Almand already has announced against Judge Humphries. The county committee also will fix fees for candidates for the general assembly. Representatives William G. Hastings, T. C. Kendrick and Helen Douglas Mankin are understood to be ready to stand for re-election. Senator G. Everett Millican, likewise is understood to be planning to run again. A senatorial district committee will handle plans for this contest.

COLLEGIATE PRESS TO CONVENE TODAY

Newspaper Addresses and Discussions Stated.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., April 28.—(AP)—The Georgia Collegiate Press Association will meet at Brenau College tomorrow and Saturday in annual convention to hear a program featuring talks by professional newspapermen and round-table discussions.

Speakers tomorrow are to include Charles Hardy, of the Gainesville News, who will talk on "Improving the College Weekly." Willett Main Kempton, of the University of Georgia, is to discuss "Modern Journalistic Trends."

Ed Dodd, cartoonist, and Austin Dean, editor of the Gainesville Eagle, are listed as speakers at a banquet tomorrow night.

The Saturday morning session will feature Marcus Bartlett, of Atlanta, and round-table discussions headed by Warren Duffie, James McGee and Earl Canfield. A business session is scheduled at 11:30 o'clock Saturday for the election of officers and selection of location for the 1939 convention.

40 CHURCHES JOIN IN BIBLE CAMPAIGN

Missionary To Speak Sunday For Drive.

Dr. Eric M. North, general secretary of the American Bible Society and outstanding missionary statesman, will speak at two Atlanta Methodist churches Sunday. He will be at the Inman Park church for the morning service and at the Park Street church for the evening service.

Other representatives of the Bible Society who will speak in Atlanta churches Sunday are the Rev. Rome A. Betts, associate secretary, at the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church in the morning and at Lakewood Baptist at night; the Rev. Edwin H. Bookmyer, field secretary, at Grant Park Baptist church in the morning and at Moreland Avenue Church of Christ at night; the Rev. Benjamin H. Smith, secretary of the southern district, at the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in the morning and at Ormewood Presbyterian church at night.

Nearly 40 churches are taking part in the campaign. MELON GROUP PLANNED. DUDLEY, Ga., April 28.—Watermelon growers will meet here Friday night to form a melon marketing association for this section of Laurens county.

OPTIMISTS TO GIVE MINSTREL TONIGHT

Funds Raised Will Be Used To Help Atlanta Children.

"Gentlemen, Be Seated!" That familiar command of the interlocutor will ring across the stage of the city auditorium tonight for the first time in 15 years as the curtain is rung up on the Optimist Club minstrel show at 8 o'clock.

After two months of preparation and rehearsals, Billy Beard, old-time minstrel and director of the show, is ready to parade his cast of 70 satin-clad, joking, singing, dancing performers before an audience of thousands in what he says will be a show equal to those that made Al G. Fields famous.

Every cent taken in at the box office and by advance ticket sales will go toward sending 500 worthy Atlanta boys to Camp Rutledge this summer. The camp is a 6,000-acre tract near Rutledge, Ga., a government project recently completed at a cost of approximately $100,000.

This is the first big undertaking of the Optimist Club, whose slogan is "Friend of the Boy." A minimum of $2,500 is needed to care for the boys and provide skilled directors and supervisors from the city school department.

Mayor Hartfield, W. A. Dobson, regional director of the Boy Scouts, and other civic leaders.

MRS. JAMES CARROLL DIES AT AGE OF 91

Marriage Culminated Romance With Union Soldier.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carroll, widow of a Union soldier, died yesterday morning at the home of a son, U. S. Carroll, 536 Montreat street, S. W. She was 91 years old.

Born in Douglas county, she spent the war years in Marietta, where she met James Carroll, a soldier in an Illinois regiment. They were married at the close of the War Between the States and he returned with her to Douglas county. Carroll was appointed postmaster of Lithia Springs in 1889. He served until his death in 1912.

Surviving, in addition to her son and daughter, Mrs. S. H. Richardson, of Lithia Springs, are 28 grandchildren, 30 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock (DST) this afternoon in Mount Pisgah church, by the Rev. F. M. David and the Rev. S. T. Gilland. Burial will be in the churchyard under the direction of Harry G. Poole. The cortege will leave the Carroll home at 2:45 o'clock.

ST. CLAIR GIBBS, ATTORNEY, 54, DIES

Atlanta Resident for 25 Years Was Prominent in Fraternities.

St. Clair Gibbs, Atlanta attorney, died early yesterday morning at his home, 388 Williams street, N. W., after a two-week illness. He was 54 years old.

A resident of Atlanta for the last 25 years, Gibbs was a member of the Atlanta Bar Association, Gate City Lodge No. 2, F. & A. M., and past patron of Capital City Chapter No. 111, Order of Eastern Star.

Born in Cincinnati of a prominent Ohio family, he received his education in Dayton. Surviving is his wife, the former Miss Alice Gordon Roberts, of Alabama.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill, with the Rev. W. M. Albert officiating. Capital City Chapter No. 111 will have charge of the services. Burial will be in Elba, Ala.

An honorary escort will include William E. Arnaud, Edgar Craighead, John F. Echols, George F. Fielding, W. W. Gaines, William Schley Howard, J. N. Johnson, D. K. Johnston, A. W. Long, Samuel A. Massell, Madison Richardson, Alvin L. Richards, N. C. Spence and W. O. Wilson.

McWHORTER REUNION. STEPHENS, Ga., April 28.—The 66th annual reunion of the McWhorter family will be held Sunday at the old cemetery and memorial spring, in Oglethorpe county, near here.

Know How To Keep Your Face Vital, Fresh and Glowingly Lovely

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday.—Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Helm, Mrs. Scheider and I went to a very beautiful funeral service for Mr. Charles Hamlin. St. John's church was crowded with his friends and associates. He and Mrs. Hamlin lived in Washington for many years and it was easy to see how many people loved them.

With all the affection one may have, however, there is nothing one can do for people when they go through the great sorrows of life. Each human soul faces its own great tests alone. All that those around may do is to try to create an atmosphere of sympathetic understanding.

Our old friend, Bishop Atwood, helped conduct the service, and, as I looked at his kindly face, I thought of how many times he must have stood by friends, acquaintances, even strangers, during dark hours. I wondered if the knowledge of human beings obtained at such times ever helps in solving a personal problem or gives one more courage to endure personal sorrows.

In the afternoon, I spent a short time at the Works Progress Administration office. Mrs. Ellen Woodward showed me a collection of photographs which cover many of the women's and professional projects throughout the country. The workers on the museum project in Baltimore, Md., had a collection of historic dolls on exhibition. They should be most helpful to the public schools, not only in illustrating periods of history, but in any dramatic production which the pupils may present.

Mrs. Scheider and I took the midnight train to New York city and, for some reason, the engineer of the train must have come to a very sudden stop during the night. I woke to find my shoes reposing on my chest, instead of the shelf at the foot of my berth where I had put them. My knitting bag also had landed on me with considerable force, for I had put a book inside it. However, nothing seemed to be wrong and we reached New York city this morning to be greeted by sunshine and cool breezes.

Again we are adjusting to standard time in Washington and daylight saving time in New York. It is delightful when you are going to Washington, for you always seem to save time, but coming this way takes five hours instead of four if you are traveling by train.

According to my engagement book, I had the morning free. I had just finished a number of telephone conversations and settled down to clear out my brief case, when a telephone message informed me that I was almost an hour late for an appointment at the American Foundation for the Blind, where I was to read the first chapter of "This Is My Story" to be recorded in a talking book.

Luckily, their office is near by, so I put my things on and dashed over and apologized profusely for having entered all this morning's engagements for tomorrow instead of for today. I was so apologetic I did everything they asked me to do, until I was fast with the newsreel cameras. I struggled then to be permitted to act and not to read. Finally, my sense of discomfort at having kept everybody waiting so long, made me consent to read a few sentences, in spite of the fact that the last time I heard myself on a newsreel it was so terrible I decided never again to open my mouth in front of one of those machines!

Beauty According To You

(Posed by Virginia Grey.)

By LILLIAN MAE.

While donning bright dresses, giddy hats and even daring "hair-dos" for spring, why not a new cream? After all, there are styles in cosmetics as well as in wardrobe. And a new article of cosmetics can really make life brighter and strike up a sparkle to your eyes and a glow to your cheeks.

So don't moon around wishing you were young and beautiful again instead of the tired, half-sleepy being that you are. Do something about it.

Selecting cosmetics is really next in importance to selecting a husband, for after all, there's nothing that calls for saner reasoning than signing away the fate of your face. A cream that will keep your face fresh and youthful has a merited place in today's scheme of things.

I want to tell you of the only cleansing cream I know about, which builds and nourishes the tissues from within, and at the same time softens and clears the skin without. Just as certain vitamins are essential to building blood and body, they are also the life-blood of a beautiful, healthy complexion, and this cream contains both vitamin D—the sunshine vitamin used to build up the bodies of undernourished chil-

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers to the "Friendly Counsel" column will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am referred to as a back number and of course I am unpopular. Resolving to reform and get some boy friends this is my plan: To improve my looks; learn to play the piano and dance; read good literature with the hope that my conversation will be intelligent. If you have any further suggestions please send them to me while I'm in the making.

"RESOLVED."

ANSWER:

Beauty, body, brain culture is a grand beginning for a girl who has designs on life but, sister, you can look like a rose, walk like a queen, play the piano like Duetin, talk like the real intelligent and yet remain lonely and unpopular. These things in themselves won't enable you to plug in on popularity unless you learn the gentle art of making

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

FIVE-SUIT BIDDING.

Once players adjust themselves to handling three extra cards in their hands and become accustomed to worrying over the possible adverse split-ups of an added suit, they will either be ready for six-suit bridge or a padded cell.

The Culbertson system of bidding appears, at present, to be as good as any yet devised for playing five-suit bridge, but there is no telling what the future may bring forth as new bidding systems pop up like saloons in a mining camp during any gold rush.

CULBERTSON ADAPTABLE. There appears to be nothing dangerous about using the Culbertson honor trick table as a method of valuing hands. Naturally more honor-trick strength is required for opening suit bids than is necessary in the standard game of contract.

Instead of there being approximately eight honor tricks scattered around the table, the total is increased to at least 10 and many times 11 honor tricks. In place of the old 4-5-6 count, partners should figure on approximately seven honor tricks combined for a game at no-trump; at least 7 1-2 honors for a game in the fifth suit; about eight honor-tricks combined for game in hearts or spades; nine for a diamond or club game-bid, and 10 to 11 honors to be in a slam zone.

OPEN 3-1-2 TO 4 H. T.

Opening one-suit bids, vulnerable or not vulnerable, require: (1) four honor tricks, a biddable five-card or strong four-card suit; (2) a six-card major or two five-card biddable suits with 3 1-2 honor-tricks minimum; (3) three honor tricks with a six-card major and a five-card side suit. Any four-card suit, but biddable, should be headed by at least 1-2 honor-tricks.

As in contract, all suit takeouts are one-round forces. They usually require three honor tricks with a biddable five-card suit or two honor tricks for a six-card major suit takeout.

Single suit raises are being recommended only with at least four supporting trump cards and two honor tricks minimum. Even negative no-trump responses promise two honor tricks and balanced distribution.

Most hands containing not more than 1-2 honor-tricks are passed by responder. Jump suit takeouts, two no-trump responses and double raises are game forcing and all promise a minimum of 3 1-2 honor tricks.

Til tomorrow—

friends and getting on with people.

By hook or crook you must lure the young people to your living room before you can put on your act and your mother should give you a lift by making her home attractive and hospitable; which is easily done by having a piano in the house and some sandwiches and a gift which every girl isn't born with but the girl who has the gift has more boy friends than she can handle. She draws them as the blossoms draw the bees. Consequently blind dates, double dates drip from her calendar and fall like showers of blessings on her chums.

Yes, I know that when a girl child asks of being an unpopular back number, she has boy friends on the brain and she isn't concerned with skirts. All the same, a skirted sister may be the means of transforming her from a wall flower into a social success. You see omph a gift which every girl isn't born with but the girl who has the gift has more boy friends than she can handle. She draws them as the blossoms draw the bees. Consequently blind dates, double dates drip from her calendar and fall like showers of blessings on her chums.

These last suggestions to add to your list of resolutions: don't cultivate an ingrowing mind while you are "in the making" or you will have no sense of humor when you finish. Don't become so absorbed in learning to talk that you forget to listen and don't neglect your friendships already formed because each of them is a link in a chain that leads—who knows where.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

A-HUM ON THE OLD CATARRH

Formerly catarrh meant inflammation of any mucous membrane. Mucous membrane lines every cavity or opening that communicates with the outside world. More recently catarrh has signified particular inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the nasal passages, chronic rhinitis.

Causes of simple chronic rhinitis are (1) living in overheated, excessively dried out atmosphere indoors most of the time; (2) overeating of refined food—too large a proportion of the calories yielded by pure starches and sugars, yet diet usually deficient in minerals and vitamins which have been removed or destroyed in process of refining natural food; (3) sedentary habit and the poor circulation accompanying it; (4) damage done by frequent infection due to popular credulity in reference to weather, drafts, dampness, sudden changes, and the like; (5) habit of wearing excessive clothing.

In the winter time when houses, offices, shops, cars, theaters and schools are artificially heated, the room temperature should be kept at 68 degrees F. If it is permitted to go to 73 or 75 most persons are sure to be stuffy from abnormal congestion of the head, whether they realize it is too warm, or not. However heated, the winter air, containing a fair amount of water vapor, becomes dried out and if heated above 68 degrees it becomes drier than the driest desert air ever becomes naturally. In every instance, then, where artificial heating is necessary, the air should be conditioned by evaporation of sufficient water to keep the humidity as nearly as practicable at the level of that of an ideal autumn day—40 to 50 per cent. This requires the evaporation of at least 15 or 20 gallons of water daily in the air of an eight room house. Air-conditioning equipment now built in or installed in modern buildings works automatically. In any circumstance a simple humidifier consisting of a galvanized metal reservoir holding a few gallons of water in which hang many folds of absorbent wicking looped over a wire frame above the water, may be placed on radiator or register in each room, and will evaporate a gallon or two of water daily. Ordinary vessels of water on radiators, registers or stoves, and ordinary water pots in furnaces, do not evaporate enough water to matter. Persons abnormally sensitive to chill or a sense of discomfort from cold should remember that air of fair relative humidity (35 per cent to 55 per cent) at a temperature of 65 to 68 is more comfortable than air excessively dried out (relative humidity 10 per cent to 20 per cent) at a temperature of 73 to 75 degrees. Only one who has tried this can realize the economy and hygiene of conditioning the air to maintain the "comfort zone."

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

Although you wouldn't expect a Radio City Rockette to devote much of her spare time to exercise, the vivacious Dorothy Collins is shown here putting precision into an exercise for slimming the waist. This is only the start. Later the elbows alternately are touched to the floor between the knees!

DON'T EVER SETTLE DOWN!

What is it that gives the figure a matronly appearance? It is a waist that has settled into the hips. That waistline roll may be caused by soft muscles and slumping rather than by excess weight or age. Stop settling down with your birthdays!

There is some excuse for a spreading hip line, because we all have to sit too many hours a day, but there is none for a dumpy waistline. Sitting correctly and pulling up exercises the waistline muscles. If it is too late for preventive measures, however, stretching and bending will pull your waist and hips apart like nothing else will.

You like to stretch, so why not put your stretching into a systematic exercise? Stretching stirs up a lagged circulation, relieves nerve tension and leaves you feeling relaxed and rested. Try it, arms overhead! Now, stretch! Pull that settled waistline up and away, then relax completely and stretch again, pulling your waist as slim as you can make it.

Here is an easy waistline stretch: Position: Stand on the floor on the knees, with hands clasped high overhead.

Movement: Still stretching up with the clasped hands, bend the trunk at the waist to the extreme left, return to upright position, and bend to the right. And don't ever think that doesn't squeeze the fat pads and strengthen weak muscles! Begin with a couple of side-ward stretches a day and gradually increase the number of times.

How about another? You will get so you like the feel of these stretching gymnastics. Position: Sitting on the floor with the feet spread wide apart, arms stretched high overhead, bend forward at the waist. Hold the arms close to the head, and swing trunk from waist. Movement: Swing the trunk over and grasp the left foot with the left hand. Then swing over to the right, and grasp the right foot with the right hand. Throughout

Position: Sit on floor, legs outstretched in front of body, feet slightly apart, hands clasped back of neck.

Movement: Keeping the back straight, but bending and twisting the body at the waist, touch the right elbow to the right knee and left elbow to the left knee. Repeat six times, and then see if you cannot touch the right elbow to the left knee, and the left elbow to the right knee. When you can do that, spread the legs apart and try touching elbows to the floor in the space between the knees.

All these exercises are wonderfully supplying. They will make you feel firm and look slim.

Miss Hopkins, Fiance

Are Honored at Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith Jr. and Miss Emily Smith entertained last evening at a rehearsal party at their home on Tuxedo road commencing Miss Helen Hill Hopkins and her fiancé, Augustus Herington Sterne.

Assisting the hosts in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hopkins and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Sterne, parents of the honor guests.

The beautifully appointed lace covered buffet supper table was centered with a crystal punch bowl holding an arrangement of white calla lilies and snapdragons flanked by silver candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Barbara Bell Styles

A DAY FROCK WITH SMART SHOULDER LINE.

Here's a dress you'll enjoy wearing every day to business, but especially Saturdays, when you're all set for an important luncheon date and an afternoon of freedom. It's tailored enough to be casual, and detailed enough for informal afternoons. Because it concentrates interest at the shoulders, this design has a wonderfully slimming effect on the figure, and the waist narrows into a slim-hipped skirt. The shoulder yoke, extending over full puffed sleeves, is smart as well as becoming.

In Barbara Bell spring and summer fashion pattern book you'll discover many other smart designs for dresses of this wearable character. Like 1519-B, all Barbara Bell patterns are amazingly easy to make, even for the inexperienced. Each is accompanied by a complete and detailed sew chart.

Make up this model in silk print, flat crepe or georgette; then, for summer, have it again in printed linen or plaid gingham. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1519-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1-3 yards of 39-inch material, with short sleeves; 4 5-8 yards with long. Plus 1-3 yard contrasting material for collar 35 or 39 inches wide.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell spring and summer fashion pattern book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN.

PLEASANT PORCHES.

Croquet is not old-fashioned any more.

"Our outdoor furniture is as old-fashioned as croquet," writes Delia K. "But this year I'm determined to do something about it. Our house inside doesn't need anything much for a change—I've at last gotten it to the point where I'm proud of it. Which leaves me with several months' accumulation of 'replacement' money from the budget. So what would you suggest? The house itself isn't anything to put on a magazine cover—just a rambling white house circa 1900. But the porches are pleasant and the lawn is nice with old trees and a garden I take my bow for. Nothing too, too expensive for the new things, please, though I'm prepared to splurge a little bit. Would like a grouping for the lawn and also some pieces for the porch. And I don't like to drag outdoor furniture around from here to there. . . . I hate all that to-do of getting settled."

Only croquet isn't old-fashioned! It's back in style, along with 1900 houses (some of them anyway are catching the attention of the decorators who're having fun with those tall narrow windows and high ceilings).

BE POPULAR, UP-TO-DATE DANCER WITH SIMPLE NEW HOME COURSE

New dances don't find Jim and Kit on the sidelines. They're right out in front, shagging like experts. Who'd guess they taught themselves at home?

The peppy shag dip they're doing now they quickly picked up with the help of the diagram shown in the picture.

You can easily follow it. On count 1, spring lightly to left foot. On 2, bend left knee, quickly slide right foot to side. On 3 and 4, repeat—starting with right foot.

How to get that bouncy "umph" good shag dancers have? Dance high on the balls of the feet, keep knees and ankles loose. Hold arms higher, stand farther apart than in the fox-trot. You want room for the swingy shag.

Easy as pie to pick up all the popular steps, from rumba to truckin', when you have diagrams showing you how to place your feet, instructions on how to keep time, fit steps to music.

Our new 40-page booklet, "Teach Yourself the Latest Dance Steps," diagrams basic steps for shag, fox-trot, conga, rumba, waltz, tango and new variations. How to combine steps smoothly. Also Suzy-Q, truckin', complete big apple directions. Tips on how to lead and follow, ballroom etiquette help make you a graceful, popular partner.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, TEACH YOURSELF THE LATEST DANCE STEPS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Mrs. Maddox Will Head Atlanta Delegates to Garden Convention

By Sally Forth.

THE vanguard of delegates attending the convention of the Garden Club of America will be led by Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, a director in the national organization which celebrates its 25th anniversary at the meeting held in Philadelphia on May 9 to 16. Accompanying Mrs. Maddox to the Quaker City will be Mrs. Valeria Rankin Manley, who goes as the alternate for Mrs. Trammell Scott, president of Peachtree Garden Club, the only Atlanta group affiliated with the national club.

Mrs. George W. Adair goes as a voting delegate and others attending will be Mesdames Edward H. Inman, John N. Goddard, Hugh Richardson and Howard Bucknell, members of the Peachtree club. Marvelous exhibits are being planned and Mrs. Pierre duPont will create her Fountains Fairland for the event at her estate in Wilmington, Del. The Garden Society show will be staged in Philadelphia on the same dates, and delegates will have opportunity to view marvelous specimens of this exotic flower. The gardens in famous estates in Wilmington will be open for the annual meeting and receptions will be given to welcome visitors, to cement acquaintanceship, and to remicise amidst charming surroundings.

THE departure of Frances Battey, of Albany, who sailed from New York Wednesday for England, is of interest to Atlantans, for this young girl will be the guest of her aunt, the former Mary Battey, of Atlanta, who is now Lady Marston, wife of Sir Charles Marston, of London.

Frances sailed on the Aquitania and upon her arrival in England she will go straight to London, where she will visit Sir Charles and Lady Marston at their apartment there. Later the hosts and their Georgia visitor will go to the Marston home, Elmendene, at Tunbridge Wells, near London. Listed as another trip for Frances will be one to Longville, Wolverhampton, where the Marstons maintain another beautiful home.

There are lots of exciting times in store for Frances while abroad, for her cousin, Holbrook Bonney, a graduate of Cornell, has an apartment in London and has appointed himself as her official guide and escort. However, a girl as charming and as attractive as Frances will not be lacking in dates.

Since her graduation from the University of Georgia, Frances has lived here, but when the invitation came to visit her aunt in England, she gave up her position and dashed to Albany, where she began days of shopping and packing for her trip. Her stay abroad will be rather indefinite, for with her hosts she will enjoy an unhurried tour of England and perhaps on the continent.

ATLANTA friends are always interested in news of Mrs. Walker Leach, who is the former Virginia Hoffman, of this city, and Sally hastens to tell them that the charming matron's costume was the hit of the Girls' Cotillion Club's bazaar dance held recently in Knoxville, Tenn.

Virginia attended the affair, one of the most amusing in Knoxville's social history, dressed as a little pickaninny. She wore blue overalls, a black wig tied with red ribbons and her face was blackened. She had a bag of cotton slung over her shoulder and was a typical picture of a "Jaw-jah" pickaninny. Everyone attending the affair came in costume and the bazaar features were faithfully carried out in the clothes lines strung with red flannels and -outgoing nightshirts.

FROM advance reports the Alpha Delta Pi international convention to be held in June at the fashionable Seignior Club in Quebec, Canada, bids fair to eclipse past gatherings of the famous college sorority. So extensive are the plans for the annual event that tomorrow there will be a special assemblage of A. D. P. leaders at the Manor Ridge residence of Mrs. John S. Candler II, who is the president for the eastern Alpha province of the sorority.

Two other leaders will be present to discuss plans for the June convention, Evelyn H. of Birmingham, grand second vice president of the sorority, and Mrs. J.

Miss Broach Weds William Guy Crowley

Dr. and Mrs. James Abner Broach announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy McColl Broach, to William Guy Crowley on April 14.

The bride's maternal grandparents are Mrs. Henrietta Stanley Dull and the late Samuel Rice Dull. She is descended on her maternal side from the Stanleys, the McCalls and was named for Hugh McColl, of Savannah, who wrote the first history of Georgia; the Harris family of North Carolina, and Governor Moore and Governor Thomas Smith, of South Carolina. Her Virginia forebears are the Rice, Lettwith and Brown families.

Her paternal grandparents were the late Dr. and Mrs. Francis Marion Broach, of Alabama. Her only sister is Miss Mary Frances Broach. She is a graduate of North Avenue Presbyterian school, attended Oglethorpe University, where she was a member of the Chi Omega sorority, and studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts. She is a member of the D. A. R.

Mr. Crowley is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin Crowley, of Dallas, Ga. His mother was Mary Evelyn Brock, of Paulding county. He is connected with the Georgia Power Company. The couple will reside at 926 Greenwood, N. E.

Miss Hewlett Feted.

Mrs. Hugh M. Lokey entertained yesterday for Miss Amelia Hewlett, bride-elect, at a bridge-table given at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Martin, on Seventh street. Mrs. Lokey was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Hugh M. Lokey Junior.

Guests were Misses Lawson Carter, Claire Hewlett, sister of the bride; Laura Hill, Mildred Pharr, of Texas, Ark.; Howard Perkins, sister of the groom; Dorothy Sanford, Roline Adair; Mrs. Lamar Ellis, sister of the bride-elect; Mrs. D. H. Hewlett, Mrs. Thomas Perkins, of Marietta, and the hostess.

J. Browder, of Tusculooza, president of the Western Alpha province, and the visitors will be the guests of Mrs. Candler.

Youthful Atlanta Equestrians Will Participate in Roxboro Junior Horse Show on Saturday

class when they enter the ring at Roxboro. The trio pictured at the right includes Miss Mary Jane Brock, mounted on her handsome gelding, Esquire; Clark Howell Jr., beside his three-gaited mare, Peg 'O' My Heart, and Miss Harriett Jordan, astride her mare, Suzanne. The junior show will be presented under the direction of Mrs. T. F. Dye, one of Atlanta's outstanding horsewomen. An invitation is extended to the public to attend the junior show tomorrow which begins promptly at 2 o'clock. Proceeds from the show will be used for the building of a clubhouse for the Roxboro Junior Riding Club, whose members include 40 prominent Atlanta children.

$4,000 Increase for Endowment Announced at Club Convention

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

ALBANY, Ga., April 28.—The Ella F. White Memorial Endowment has been increased $4,000 since the silver jubilee drive began last January through contributions from clubs and individuals. Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, the chairman, reported this figure at today's session of the 43rd convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs being held here in the auditorium. The goal is $25,000 and the drive will be continued until the autumn meeting of the state executive board. Interest from this fund is used for necessary expenses of the federation, and helps make the wheels go around.

The endowment memorializes the late Mrs. H. C. White, of Athens, who died while president of Georgia federation. A special edition of The Atlanta Constitution, issued on June 4, 1913, earned $3,100 for this fund.

The names of Mrs. Harvie Jordan, of Atlanta, federation executive secretary, Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, the newly-elected president, and of Cairo Woman's Club were placed on the founders' roll of the endowment. Honor was conferred upon Mrs. Jordan by loyal friends in appreciation of service rendered, the amount of $100 being contributed for this purpose. The fourth district, in which Mrs. Hill resides, contributed the amount as a tribute to her, 100 silver dollars being brought in in a silver pitcher. Cairo Club members raised this required amount to be placed on founders' roll. The completion of this fund will strengthen old activities and open new avenues of service in federation work.

Second district won the Mattie Bell Gholston cup for the largest per capita gift for Tallulah Falls School, and Pelham Woman's Club gets the cup for the largest per capita club. Mrs. John K. Otley, president of the school board of trustees made the report, and stated that Bainbridge Tallulah circle was awarded the cup for the largest gift from a junior club for Stewart Brown perpetual scholarship. The achievement award, the first gavel used by Mrs. Otley to launch the greater Tallulah campaign, went to Albany Young Matrons circle for the third successive year. Jewell-Mayfield Club in the sixth district, originator of the one dollar per capita plan for Tallulah, again heads the list of clubs contributing to this plan. Other clubs following suit were Pelham, Columbus Wynnton Study, LaGrange, Atlanta Every Saturday, Rhodendron, of Waycross, Gainesville Study and Arts Study, Windsor Junior, Augusta and Athens. Tallulah Falls School is owned and operated by Georgia Federation, and herein underprivileged children are educated.

Mrs. Clara Conroy, of Albany, president of Business and Professional Club, donor of Lena Lake Forrest perpetual scholarship, was among prominent women introduced. This marks the 29th year that Mrs. Price Smith, of Atlanta, has been chairman of gift scholarships, and she reported 126 scholarships secured during the year.

Miss Marian Woodward, of Atlanta, chairman of Student Aid Foundation, which loans money to girls to obtain higher education, stressed the new collection policy in which each borrower is expected to budget her income, including a minimum of 10 per cent for student aid loan. Her report marked the turning of another page in student aid history which began 30 years ago. Miss Woodward stated that funds have been used three times so that every dollar contributed to this foundation means three times the original gift to student education. Acting Executive Secretary Mrs. Dowse Donaldson, of Atlanta, expressed appreciation to district student aid chairmen and to clubwomen for their generous support and interest. She explained by use of a map of Georgia, the number of girls and amount of loans made in the 10 districts during 30 years since the founding of student aid.

Mrs. John Spalding awarded two cups offered by student aid foundation which were won by the fourth district, with Mrs. J. A. Corry, of Barnesville, as chairman. The Connally cup is given to the district which contributes the largest number of gifts to founders memorial roll. The student aid cup is awarded on a percentage basis, for active chairman of student aid in each club of the district; for number of programs featuring student aid, based on member clubs in district; largest district gift, based on members clubs, and report sent to state chairman by April 1.

Miss Beth Taylor, of Albany, spoke on the student aid program. She is a student aid girl, having used a loan to help her attend G. S. C. W., where she held an enviable reputation in scholastic records and other lines. She is employed in Albany and talked on her experience in securing a college education and of her gratitude to the fund which made it possible.

The following officers were elected and inducted into office: Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, president; Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth, first vice president; Mrs. John W. Jenkins, of Athens, second vice president; Mrs. C. W. Heery, of Atlanta, recording secretary; Mrs. John O. Braselton, of Braselton, treasurer, and Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, director for Georgia in General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Hill will appoint the corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Hill, the new president, is the former Miss Susie Parks, of Newnan, and has a cultured and distinguished family background. She has been first vice president, recording secretary, and treasurer of the state body, held the presidency of the fourth district, and is director for life in the federation.

Mrs. Hill belongs to Warm Springs Woman's Club and is an active worker in the Methodist church in Greenville. She possesses leadership qualifications, executive ability, a rare sense of justice, keen awareness and will use her best efforts to promote the undertakings fostered by the state body. Her experience in club work covers a period of 25 years, and Mrs. Hill is fitted by training, by native ability, by character, and by personal charm to fill the office with credit to herself and the federation.

Mrs. Butler, director for Georgia, in general federation, was elevated from the first vice presidency to this important post. She will act as liaison officer between national and state club women, and it will be her duty to acquaint them with the activities of general federation, and enlist their support in matters concerning the mother organization. Mrs. Butler has been engaged in club work for many years and is well qualified to fill the high office conferred upon her at the convention. She is the former Miss Jessie Morris, of Marietta, and is descended from

LEMUEL C. BUTLER
FINAL RITES HELD
Funeral services for Lemuel C. Butler, 84, Atlanta pioneer, who died Wednesday morning in a private hospital, were held yesterday afternoon in the First Church of the Nazarene, with the Rev. E. K. Hardy and the Rev. P. P. Bellevue officiating. Burial was in Rock Springs cemetery, under the direction of A. S. Turner.

Born in the Lakewood Heights section of the city, Butler and his mother were among the few to refuse to evacuate the town after its capture by Sherman. One of the first three newsmen to carry The Constitution, he was a former foreman of The Constitution pressroom. He lived at 145 Norwood avenue, N. E.

LA FOLLETTE LAYS
NAVY PLAN TO F.D.R.
WASHINGTON, April 28.—(P) The government should build prosperity at home instead of embarking on a "huge program of armament expansion," Senator La Follette told the senate today. Opposing the administration's $1,156,000,000 naval expansion bill, the Wisconsin Progressive expressed the opinion that the program had been originated by President Roosevelt instead of the Navy Department. He said that naval officers never had requested the expansion during past testmony before congressional committees.

DAUGHTREY SWORN IN AS NEW COOK SHERIFF
NASHVILLE, Ga., April 28.—(P)—W. I. Daughtrey has been sworn in as sheriff of Cook county, after dismissal of an injunction suit brought in the name of a losing candidate for the office.

W. W. Branch, one of the five candidates who trailed Daughtrey in the voting, filed the suit charging Daughtrey had not paid poll taxes within the time allowed by law and that he was not a qualified voter.

The order dismissing the suit was signed by Judge Will R. Smith.

FIRST PEACHES OF '38
SHIPPED BY GEORGIAN
MACON, Ga., April 28.—(P)—The first peaches of this season were on their way to the New York market this afternoon, three weeks ahead of normal.

The shipper was O. J. Bateman, of Byron, in Peach county, who sent three crates to a New York produce house. The fruit is of the Mayflower variety.

A light movement of early fruit had been expected next week.

Vols Trim Crackers, 3-2, To Take Opening Game of Series

English Can't Accuse Us of Over-Emphasis in Sports Reporting

LONDON, England.—(By Mail)—Mr. Robert Taylor, the cinema star, is playing here in a very excellent picture called "A Yank at Oxford."

It is packing them in daily and the papers carry much publicity about it, because all the old "Blues" go look at it and find out what is wrong.

Today there was an article in the paper from an "Old Blue," who discovered that Mr. Taylor did not wear a waistcoat with academic dress. Another "Old Blue" mourned the running style of "The Yank at Oxford."

There are gags aplenty directed at each nation, but there is one which is very, very true to life. Mr. Taylor, as "The Yank at Oxford," has his bicycle go bad on him and takes it to a shop. The dialogue goes something like this:

"Can you repair it for me?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Can I get it right away?"

"Oh, indeed, sir."

"Well, I'll wait for it."

"Oh, sir, it will not be ready for at least a fortnight."

It was just today that I called up a golf organization to ask a bit of information about the Walker cup matches.

"Will it take much of your time?" I asked

"Not at all, sir."

"Then, I'll just hold on."

"Oh, my sir, I will be able to mail it to you within a few days."

They are very thorough people. They insist on doing things their own way. And, it must be confessed, they do them well. Just now the government is about to make contracts to buy planes from America and Canada. It seems the British factories polish all plane parts by hand, cut their bolts from the steel bar and refuse to speed up by methods in force in Canada and America where, it also must be confessed, the better planes are made. The British can develop the fastest plane in the world or the fastest speed car. But to make them in great numbers at great speed is beyond them. I do not say it is a fault. Except, of course, when preparing for war.

THE HOLIDAYS.

England is, at this writing, recovering from the Easter holidays. They are done magnificently. The entire town closes up on Thursday and there is Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday as holidays.

There are extra trains loaded, extra planes crowded, extra ships in service. The highways are jammed. The lanes are filled with hikers and bicycle clubs spin on their way, their legs red with cold.

The hikers impressed me most. At one place we visited over the week end, two young girls, about 20 years of age, took a four-day hike of 70 miles. It is a country with more personal safety. One may walk about at night without getting held up and girls may take long walks and stop at village inns without being molested by fresh young squirts in automobiles or by passers-by. Each village had its hundreds of visitors, hikers and bicyclers.

It was pretty. The primroses were blooming in the fields and forests. The hedge rows were filled with flowers. The

44TH PENN RACES TO START TODAY IN PHILADELPHIA

3,000 Enter 80 Events; Cunningham, Other Stars Run.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—(UP)—Track and field's biggest extravaganza, the 44th annual Penn relays, opens a two-day stand tomorrow in Franklin field. Upwards of 3,000 athletes from 500 colleges, prep and high schools will strive for medals in 80 events that include virtually every kind of a foot race.

In addition there will be 13 special invitation events, featuring such non-college stars as Glenn Cunningham, Don Lash, Ben Johnson and Joe McCluskey.

ENTER AGAIN.

All the winners of major relay titles last year, are entered again and most of them loom as formidable defenders. They are: Indiana, half-mile, four-mile and distance Medley of 2 1-2 miles; Manhattan, mile and two-mile; North Texas State, 440-yard relays, and Pitt, spring medley winners.

Saturday's highlight will be an invitation mile run featuring Glenn Cunningham, world indoor record holder, Gene Venzke, former king of the millers, and two other men who have not been selected.

Drake Relays Start Today.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 28. (P)—The Weather Bureau brought cheer to Drake relays officials tonight with a "fair and warmer" forecast for the opening of the twenty-ninth annual carnival tomorrow.

Although there have been intermittent rains all week, the stadium track was pronounced "fast" and will be in good shape for the nearly 2,000 athletes from more than 175 schools.

Bulldogs Lose; Play Tech Netmen Today

ATHENS, Ga., April 28.—Winning every match, with the exception of one singles contest, the University of Alabama rode rough-shod over Georgia's tennis team, 8 to 1, here today.

The Red and Black squad will attempt to break its losing streak when they engage the Tech Yellow Jackets tomorrow afternoon. The match will be played in Athens.

While the varsities of the ancient rivals are battling it out in Athens the Georgia freshmen will meet the Baby Jackets on their home courts in Atlanta.

Today's results were:

SINGLES.
Twarog (A.) defeated Jones (G.) 6-3, 6-2.
Goodes (A.) defeated Lindsay 6-4, 6-1.
Rubel (A.) defeated Brice (G.) 6-3, 6-2.
Gentsch (A.) defeated Weill (G.) 6-3, 6-2.
Drennen (A.) defeated Wall (G.) 4-6, 6-2.
Sutherland (G.) defeated Williams (A.) 6-4, 6-3.

DOUBLES.
Twarog-Goodes (A.) defeated Jones-Brice (G.) 6-4, 6-4.
Rubel-Gentsch (A.) defeated Sutherland-Lindsay (G.) 4-6, 8-6, 6-3.
Drennen-Williams (A.) defeated Wall-Weill (G.) 6-3, 6-3.

JOHNNY HILL SCORES --- AS CHARLEY DRESSEN LOOKS ON

Johnny Hill slapped a triple on the right-center bank in the fourth inning of yesterday's opener with Nashville and is shown, above, coming home on Eddie Rose's single. Charley Drensen, who is back in the league as manager of Nashville after a spell in the big show with the Cincinnati Reds, looks on. Lack of Cracker punch enabled Crouch and Nashville to take the opener, 3 to 2. Larry Miller will pitch for the Crackers tonight.

Smithies Play Cadet Nine Today

Tech High and G. M. A. will play the feature game of the second round of the second half of the city prep baseball race, at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Piedmont Park. Boys' High and Commercial will play the other game at Grant park, with Marist having an open date.

Two games will be played in the first round of the last half of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference race. Fulton plays at Decatur and Marietta plays at Southwest DeKalb. Norcross will be idle.

Tech High is leading the prep race with two wins and no defeats. The Cadets are battling for second place and a victory today will give Tech High, Boys' High, G. M. A. and Marist, all a chance for the title, since a majority of the first half games had to be postponed due to bad weather.

Fulton High Beats Decatur Nine, 8 to 5.

Fulton High jumped on Ralph Kinerly for four runs in the first inning and then went on to win the game, 8 to 5, yesterday afternoon at Decatur.

Charlie Anderson led Decatur's attack with a home run, triple and single and H. Pierce slammed out a homer for the losing cause. Bell and Scruggs, with two hits each, featured the winner's attack.

Decatur plays Griffin at Decatur on Tuesday.

Score by innings:
Fulton 4 11 0 100-8 8 0
Decatur 0 11 0 100-5 5 0
Kinerly, Jakes and Wright; Meyers and Armandola.

JACKETS PLAY AUBURN TODAY

AUBURN, Ala., April 28.—Athletic foes since 1892 will come to blows on Drake field at Auburn Friday and Saturday in the final Southeastern conference baseball games here this year. The rivals in the closing loop battles of the season on the local diamond will be Auburn and Georgia Tech, who are spirited enemies in all major sports.

Auburn and Tech will answer the gong at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and tie up Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Since their early season series in Atlanta was rained out, very likely they also will meet in the Gate City in a couple of combats on May 11 and 12.

The Yellow Jackets of Coach Bobby Dodd fill the semi-final spot on the Tigers' home schedule for 1938. Oglethorpe, which will invade the Plains for a pair of spats on Friday and Saturday, May 13 and 14, is the final opponent.

Seeking more offensive strength in the outfield and both more defensive and offensive power in the infield, Skipper Dell Morgan might make three changes in the starting lineup for the major frays with the Engineers.

Miller and Williams Richards' Experiment With Youthful Battery—Williams Caught Larry Last Time Latter Hurled in Top Form.

By Jack Troy

When Larry Miller goes out to pitch for the Crackers on ladies' night tonight, the catcher will be Dewey Williams, steady young receiver who played the outfield last year for Macon.

Manager Paul Richards is retiring in favor of Williams tonight for a very good reason. The young Cracker pilot likes to experiment.

And it so happens that the last time Miller pitched in top form Williams was catching him. It was in the game against the Athletics at LaGrange. Miller allowed only seven hits in a superb performance.

There may be another angle to the situation, too. Richards is a great receiver. He is, perhaps, the top catcher in the Southern league. Or at least he has been every year he has been in the league, according to a poll of writers.

But it is highly possible that Richards feels Miller may have a lot of confidence in Williams after that exhibition game.

Williams caught a brilliant game against Chattanooga. He caught the Crackers' first shutout victory in which Bill Beckman allowed the Engel Elephants only two hits. At any rate, it will be an interesting experiment to watch tonight. Miller, as said, hasn't been in top form since the Athletic performance, and tonight may be his night to hit his pitching stride again.

If he does, it won't be surprising to see Williams behind the plate when Miller works in future games.

Atlanta Boys Trim Pebbles.

It is quite a coincidence that Little Rock, having lost only two games, has lost both to Atlanta boys.

Hugh Casey, the pride of Buckhead and a member of the Memphis team, turned the Pebbles back on eight hits.

And young Tiny Osborne, pitching for the New Orleans Pelicans, went into a game in a relief role and stopped the Rocks cold. He allowed only three hits in five and two-thirds innings.

Miller Supplies A Good Answer.

During a lull in the singing as the Crackers rode happily home to Atlanta by bus from Chattanooga, Larry Miller said, "Well, that was one game in which we didn't give away any runs."

Miller was speaking of Bill Beckman's two-hit shutout.

It was a good answer and a very timely one, too, because the Crackers have lost three games this year by the distracting method of handing the enemy the necessary runs. The fact that this didn't get the boys down is proof enough of the sort of team the Crackers are.

As Manager Richards remarked on the bus trip, "This club has got more determination and will-to-win than any club I have seen in many years."

It's a fact. And the team that won't be beat, can't be beat, in the long run, unless, of course, it beats itself. There is every reason to believe that the Crackers now have

Dean To Hurl For Tubize Tonight

ROME, Ga., April 28.—Northwest Georgia's first night baseball game will be played at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night when Tubize, of the Northwest Georgia Textile league, meets Frank Anderson's Oglethorpe Petrels.

Major Trammell Scott, newly elected president of the Southern league, will be a guest of honor and will pull the switch that will light a 200,000-candlepower system. Eddie Reese, president of the Textile league, will pitch the first ball, and Rome's high school students will march around the park in special costumes.

A fireworks display will formalize the occasion.

Crackers Can't Hit With Men on Base; Johnny Hill Stars.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers had plenty of chances to knock William Crouch off the ropes and out of the ring yesterday, but the big punch was lacking and Crouch hung in there and won the series opener for Nashville, 3 and 2.

Crouch won in spite of his own wildness and a couple of errors that would have been disastrous if the Crackers had been able to muster a hit at the right time.

The story of the defeat is told in the left on bases column in the box score. The Crackers left 11 runners stranded. But it wasn't exactly an inauspicious start on their 10-game home stand.

STILL KNOCKING.
For, at the end, the boys were still knocking vigorously at the door and only a desperate recovery

OUTSTANDING

ery of Johnny Hill's grounder by Second Baseman Fallon in time to force Manager Paul Richards at second for the third out in the ninth prevented Dewey Williams from scoring the tying run.

It was such a game as to hold the interest of 1,543 fans from start to finish.

From the second inning on, Manager Charley Drensen continually was warming up Ray Starr and Art Evans. It looked as if the Crackers would have Crouch out of there at any minute.

But he managed to come out of each bad situation well. And only in the fourth did the Crackers muster any punch to speak of. That was when Johnny Hill, the game's batting star, tripled and was driven home by Rose. The latter scored on a wild pitch. Crouch got out of a bad hole in

Bull Lea Sets Mark At Keeneland Track

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 28. (P)—Warren Wright's Bull Lea, a Kentucky Derby eligible, whipped three other Derby nominees today in winning the $5,000 added Bluegrass stakes at Keeneland race course. Menow was second and Red Breast in the show spot. Both Menow, owned by Hal Price Headley and Red Breast, from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stables, are Derby eligibles. Bull Lea paid $3.20 as he set a new track record of 1:49.3-5 for the mile and one-eighth.

Paul Leslie Second With 145; Match Play Starts Today.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 28. (P)—Henry Castillo, brilliant Louisiana State sophomore, turned in a fiery 68, four under par, for 73-68-141 to capture medal honors today in the Southeastern conference golf tournament.

Castillo's sub-par afternoon round set up a new course record for play under competition over L. S. U.'s par-72 layout.

Paul Leslie, L. S. U. veteran, finished closest behind his teammate in the qualifying with 73-72-145.

Defending Champion Vincent D'Antoni, of Tulane, carded 75 and 74 for 149 and Tommy Barnes, Georgia Tech, last week's Southern Intercollegiate title winner, bagged a pair of 75s for 150.

Louisiana State easily retained its team championship with a total of 598 strokes, or 32 strokes better than Georgia Tech's 630. The University of Georgia team finished third with 633, Alabama fourth with 638 and Tulane fifth with 661.

Twenty-two golfers representing the five conference schools played in the qualifying rounds. L. S. U. landed all six Tiger entrants in the championship flight. Castillo's bag of clubs, with one exception, were working in high gear all day long. During his morning round, the slender Spaniard-born linksman found trouble with his putter and missed a number of short green shots.

In the afternoon, however, Castillo throttled his putter into working order and turned in two birdies on each nine as his only departures from regular pars.

Castillo's card:
MORNING ROUND.
Par out 444 543 434-35
Castillo 444 544 425-36

AFTERNOON ROUND.
Castillo 344 443 434-33
Castillo 443 434 544-35-68-141

Leslie, L. S. U. No. 1 player, matched Castillo's 73 to share the lead at the end of the first 18 holes of the qualifying and came back stronger with even par 72. But neither Leslie, Barnes nor D'Antoni could match the skill that almost magically directed Castillo's shots.

Pairings including the qualifying scores for first-round matches tomorrow morning:
Henry Castillo, L. S. U., 141, vs. Stanley Holditch, Ga. Tech, 156.
Jerry Dillon, L. S. U., 151, vs. Everett Rupert, Alabama, 161.
Vincent D'Antoni, Tulane, 149, vs. Wright Adams, L. S. U., 158.
William Smith, Ga. Tech, 155, vs. Dean Covington, Georgia, 157.
Paul Leslie, L. S. U., 145, vs. Byron Bower, Georgia, 157.
Bert McDowell, L. S. U., 154, vs. Calhoun Bowen, Georgia, 162.
Tommy Barnes, Ga. Tech, 150, vs. Harry Deas, Tulane, 159.
Billy Burke, Alabama, 156, vs. Albert Michael, L. S. U., 164.
Billy Calley, Ga. Tech, 166, vs. Ed Goldsmith, Alabama, 175.

'It Will Take Superman To Break 13.7'--Towns

Radical Improvement in Hurdling Form and Long-Legged Sprinter Are Prerequisite.

ATHENS, Ga., April 28. (P)—Forrest (Spec) Towns, the gangling Georgian whose amazing 13.7 seconds for the high hurdles was written into the books recently as a new world's record, thinks the mark may be beaten some day but believes it will take a "super-man" to do it.

- CRACKERS -

the fourth, in spite of it. The Crackers had three left on that inning.

Black Mike Martineck, Vol first baseman, delivered the killing blow in the sixth. His single with two runners on and two men out gave the Vols the winning margin.

It ruined a heroic effort by John Michaels, the veteran left-hander, to turn in a victory for the Crackers. Any hitting at all behind Michaels would have saved the day.

Johnny Hill set off the spark in the fourth. He tripled on the bank in right center. Rubeling popped to Brown. Rose drove a sharp single to center, scoring Hill. Chatham hit in front of the plate and Rose beat Blaemire's throw to second. Rucker popped to short. Then Michaels pounded a hit off Crouch's glove, filling the bases. Rose scored on a wild pitch. Mauldin walked, again filling the bases, and Bolling fouled to Rodda, ending the rally.

Nashville scored two in the sixth to take the lead again. Parks doubled to right and Rodda dropped a single in short center. The ball tipped Mauldin's glove. Bolling tagged out Walker and Michaels fanned Blaemire. Martineck supplied the punch wallop, a line single to right. Both runners scored but Martineck was thrown out trying to stretch the hit. Rucker to Bolling to Rubeling. The Crackers had a chance to tie it up in the ninth when Williams, batting for Durham, walked and Mauldin sacrificed. Bolling, however, was thrown out by Brown. Richards walked. Hill forced Richards at second. Fallon fumbled the ball but recovered just in time to throw to Brown.

VOLS START SCORING.
The Vols opened the scoring in the third. Brown singled and Crouch sacrificed. Then Fallon singled, sending Brown to third. Parks hit a high hopper and by the time Michaels had a chance to field it and throw home, Brown had scored. Rodda was thrown out by Chatham and Walker fled to Rucker.

MAILHO IN STANDS.
Only Johnny Hill was hitting. He got three safeties in four trips. And it was a bit sad to see Emil Mailho, who has been stugging the ball, sitting in the stands in civilian clothes. Mailho has a pulled leg muscle which may keep him out of the entire Nashville series. The Crackers' total of hits was seven.

Bobby Durham relieved Michaels in the eighth and turned the Vols back with one hit in one and two-thirds innings. Durham looks like an ace both as a starter and relief hurler.

First boys' day of the season was observed yesterday and there was a large and enthusiastic turnout. The boys were calling for "Mister Moon" when Richards changed pitchers in the eighth.

"WE WANT MOON."
"We want Moon!" they screamed for a full two minutes as "Mister Moon," grinning, continued with his warming-up exercises. First ladies' night of the season is scheduled tonight. The game will start at 8:30. Ray Starr will twirl for the Vols, while Larry Miller will be on the mound for the Crackers.

The Crackers lost no ground yesterday because Knoxville, profiting by the example set by Atlanta, knocked off the Limping Lookouts.

Ned Harris Reports To Cracker Club

Ned Harris reported to the Crackers yesterday and Manager Paul Richards was impressed with his possibilities for the future.

Harris, a college boy who played for Buford last season, belongs to Beaumont and will get a thorough trial with Atlanta. He is an outfielder and hits and throws left-handed.

"I won't say the record will never be broken," Towns remarked just before going out on the field where he now trains freshman athletes. "That's what they said when Earle Thompson ran the high hurdles in 15 seconds some 15 years ago."

NEED SUPERMAN.
"But if it is ever beaten or even equaled, a new way of going over the hurdles will have to be created and the hurdler will have to be a superman on the track."

That's exactly the way the Olympic athlete feels about his new record, and he doesn't mean to be bragging. He isn't that type of fellow.

Towns explained that by a new way of going over the hurdles, he meant it would be necessary to make some radical improvement in hurdling form that will enable a runner to cross the barriers in shorter time than it now takes.

NEW HURDLING FORM.

"I believe," said the freckle-faced speedster, "that if anyone ever breaks that mark he will be able to run a hundred yards in 9.5 seconds, will have exceptionally long legs, and will employ something new in hurdling form."

Towns said he was surprised when the International Amateur Athletic Union accepted his 13.7 seconds, made shortly after the Olympic games, in a race at Oslo, Norway, but added he felt certain the timers had clocked him correctly.

"I knew when I was running that the race was the fastest I had ever done," Towns continued. "I felt just right that day and, strangely, I've never felt that way since. The only reason I thought the record wouldn't be accepted was that I just didn't believe the authorities thought the hurdles could be run that fast."

AFL CARRIES FIGHT INTO LEWIS CAMP

Executive Council Charters Miners' Union To Rival CIO's Group.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) The bitter war between the AFL and the CIO moved into John L. Lewis' own back yard today when the AFL executive council chartered a new coal miners' union to fight Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The Progressive Miners of America, an Illinois union which has fought the UMW for six years, is to be the nucleus of the new organization. Joe Ozanic, president of the Illinois Progressives, is to be temporary president of the new international union until it has its first convention. C. E. Fearcy, a native of Lucas, Iowa, where Lewis also was born, is to be temporary secretary-treasurer. Headquarters are to be established in Chicago, and the Illinois Progressives are to be chartered as District No. 1 of the new union.

The National Bureau of Standards recently tested the liveliness of the official balls adopted for use in baseball games.

Boy Scouts To Display Skill At Annual Circus Tomorrow Night

A khaki-clad mass of more than 2,000 Boy Scouts tomorrow night will march through the gates of Grant Field to herald the opening of the Ninth Annual Boy Scout Circus, hailed by organizers as being the high point of the Atlanta area council's activities each year.

In the stands will be an estimated 10,000 persons, including proud parents, scout-minded businessmen and hundreds of underprivileged children from various welfare and orphanage homes of this district. The boys will enter the gates at 7:30 o'clock sharp.

Kirsten Flagstad Accorded Ovation In Brilliant Climax to 1938 Series

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Kirsten Flagstad gave a thrilling concert at the Fox theater last night to bring to a brilliant climax the 1937-38 season of the All-Star Concert Series. And 5,000 listeners responded to the glory of her voice and the greatness of her art with an ovation such as is accorded an artist only once in a blue moon.

Time after time they called her back for curtain calls and encores, and finally, when she sang the "Cry of the Walkure," from Wagner's "Die Walkure," the audience went wild with excitement.

Flagstad is a singer supreme. She stands in regal beauty, and with utmost ease there pours forth from her throat the most glorious tones. One feels awed by the splendor and beauty of her singing, as if a revelation from another world were being made. Yet she is so real, so vividly alive, so dramatically and passionately a part of art, that one wonders how all this could be embodied in a human voice.

"Every one of the 19 events was planned and worked out by boys," Marr said yesterday. "Yet, we believe each section of the program is enlightening and that every part will prove the initiative and intelligence of the boy sponsors. Nothing amateurish will be exhibited."

All Atlanta Scouts who are available will take place in the grand entry march, which will be staged after a short concert by the Georgia Tech band, directed by A. J. Garing. Gates will open at 7 o'clock, at which time the boys will congregate for the mass entry.

Then, for hours, the audience will be greeted with exhibits featuring equilibrist—tumbles—the evolution of signaling, Indian lore, model scout camps, riding of bicycles in formation by large groups of boys, wall scaling, chariot races, comic boxing, pioneering and displays of the various classifications of Scout life—cubbing, investiture of a tenderfoot and senior scouting.

Kirsten Flagstad Accorded Ovation In Brilliant Climax to 1938 Series

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Mme. Flagstad opened her program with three Schubert songs and two Strauss songs, the first "Great Is Jehovah," then "Im Abendrot," "Ungeheuer," and the Strauss, "Ich trage meine Minne" and "Caecilie." After this first group she was given an ovation, so impressive was the quality of her voice and musicianship.

The second group was all Grieg, sung in Norwegian, and was given with flawless vocal artistry and interpretation. The group consisted of "A Boat Rocks to and Fro," "A Swan," "And I Shall Have a True Love," "Of Spring," and "Thanks for Your Counsel," and she graciously responded to the prolonged applause with the ever loved "I Love Thee," also by Grieg.

Flagstad's singing of Isolda's "Liebestod," from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolda" will be an unforgettable memory.

Her final group was sung entirely in English, and listed "We Two Together," Kernochan; "Snow Towards Evening," War-

Children Wage War, 55,637 Flies 'Pay'

TUPELO, Miss., April 28.—(AP)—There were 55,637 fewer flies in the Mooreville community today.

School children launched a fly-killing contest as their observance of Health Day recently. The votes were counted today and Mary Nell Tally won with 5,842. The runner-up, Thelma Riley, had executed 4,323.

BUSINESS GROUP HONORS ATLANTANS

Miss Julia White Named to National Council.

By MARGARET RICHARDS. COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 28.—Miss Julia White, a member of the Atlanta Business Girls' League, was elected to the National Business and Professional Council at the assembly meeting here this week.

Miss White succeeds Miss Ethel Moore, whose term automatically expired. This makes the fifth year that Atlanta has been represented on the National Council. A former president of the Atlanta league, Miss White was also business manager for the adult period at Camp Highland and was chairman of various committees.

Miss Christie Birrell, of New York, a leader in the club directed by Miss Flora Hatcher, former Atlanta secretary, was elected president of the council.

ren; a song by Edwin McArthur, her accompanist, "Spring Came," that was outstanding; "When I Have Sung My Songs," Ernest Charles, and "Sea Moods," by Mildred Tyson. Her first encore was Oley Speaks' "Morning," and then came the "Cry of the Walkure."

Edwin McArthur proved himself not only an accompanist of rare ability, but also a soloist of fine caliber in a group of four piano solos following intermission. His technique was brilliant and skilled and his interpretations of particular appeal. His performance of Moszkowski's "Caprice Espagnole" won high favor. He was forced to give an encore, Gadowsky's "Alt Wien."

Her final group was sung entirely in English, and listed "We Two Together," Kernochan; "Snow Towards Evening," War-

$12,562,418 IS VOTED IN SOUTH CAROLINA Appropriations Bill Is Approved by Both Houses.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 28.—(AP)—The legislature swept aside a major obstacle to final adjournment today with adoption of the $12,562,418 joint conference report on the general appropriation bill.

The senate approved the report, which came from the conference room last night, without debate or a record vote.

A 71-to-27 favorable vote in the house came a few minutes later in spite of an attack by a group opposing the two-mill state property levy.

REALLOTMENT ASKED FOR UNUSED ACREAGE

WASHINGTON, April 28.—(AP) Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, asked congress today to authorize a reapportionment of unused cotton acreage allotments.

She offered an amendment to the farm act permitting the secretary of agriculture to determine the amount of acreage allotments issued in any county to farmers who have not planted cotton and to distribute the allotments among other farmers in the same county who wish to increase their production.

She said the amendment would release for planting thousands of "frozen" acres covered by unused allotments.
